Speaking of "Differences"
Why Waste Time on Lions?
150-Pound Ride
Greatest of All Wealth

—By Arthur Brisbane—

YOU READ: "The consensus of opinion is against a separate air force. If public opinion has anything to do with it, opinion is overwhelmingly in FAVOR of the separate air force.

We have separate Army and Navy Departments, because the army and navy are DIFFERENT.

The navy requires one kind of skill, the army another kind.

The army and navy being different, one fighting on land and the other on water, we have army and navy departments, independent of each other.

WHY DON'T the respectable dodos, middle-aged incompetents that sent the Shenandoah to destruction, ask these questions?

Is the difference between army and navy, land and water fighting any greater than between the flying machine and the army or navy?

Isn't the difference between fighting in the air, miles above earth, a difference much greater than that between fighting on land and on sea?

IF ARMY AND NAVY gentlemen can't see it, President Coolidge can. And he is responsible for the army and the navy.

Now that the thing has happened, he would be responsible for allowing navy incompetents to destroy another airship as the Shenandoah was destroyed. It is likely that he will favor putting competent men, responsible to him, in charge of the air fleet—even if it does annoy the double collection of dodos entrenched in the army and navy.

IT IS SAID Colonel Mitchell intends, if dismissed from the army, to hunt big game in Africa.

Colonel Mitchell ought to stay here, AND TEACH YOUNG AMERICANS TO FLY.

Many would gladly subscribe to establish a Mitchell flying school to teach flying and help young men to finance the purchase of machines.

If Colonel Mitchell could send a few thousand flying machines South to Florida and West to California, he would render a greater public service than by killing all the lions in Africa.

AT THE Genesee, N. Y., fair yesterday, Lieutenant-Governor Lowman arranged to ride one mile on the back of a five-ton elephant.

The farmers doubtless laughed as they saw 150 pounds of human being carried by 10,000 pounds of elephant.

But when Marco Polo was the guest of Kublai Khan, he saw that monarch start out to war on a platform carried by four elephants chained together.

Forty thousand pounds of elephant carried an Asiatic ruler and a few picked bowmen.

A 10,000-POUND ELEPHANT will carry on its head one mahout, to guide the big beast, and in the howdah on its back an English gentleman eager to kill a tiger without giving that tiger a chance to kill him.

Consider the gap between Kublai Khan and Henry Ford, who gives you for a few dollars a little machine that will carry seven people forty miles an hour, carrying more than its own weight in freight.

If our progress in thinking had equalled our progress in trans-

NORA BAYES IN BATTLE SAVES PASTE GEMS AS THUGS WOUND DRIVER

New York, Sept. 25.—After trailing Nora Bayes from the stage door of the Riverside Theatre to her home at No. 624 West End avenue, three thugs struck down the singer, shot John Carlow, her chauffeur, and fired a fusilade of bullets at a uniformed doorman, whom they mistook for a policeman, in making their escape.

The "gems" worn by Miss Bayes, who formerly used a comedy holdup as part of her act, were paste worn by her on the stage. Her real jewels were locked away.

The bandits' car halted behind Miss Bayes' limousine in front of the apartment she occupies with Lester Friedlander, her fifth husband, and her two adopted children.

A swarthy youth, hat pulled over his eyes, thrust aside Carlow and helping Miss Bayes from the car, levelled a pistol upon her.

SHOOTS CHAUFFEUR.

"Up with 'em! kid! and give us your jewelry! Have you any money? We'll take that, too!"

When Carlow flung himself upon the thug, a shot rang out. Carlow slumped to the road, a bullet in his

FIRST FRENCH DEBT OFFER IS REJECTED

Washington, Sept. 24.—(I.N.S.)—The real trading over an adjustment of the $4,000,000,000 French war debt began today between Joseph Caillaux, the wily French minister of Finance and Andrew W. Mellon the canny American secretary of the treasury.

The initial proposal, formulated by M. Caillaux and put forward by him in the first session of the two debt commissions has been found "entirely unacceptable" to the Americans.

It strayed so far from the British and other agreements already consummated and differed so radically from what the Americans believe constitutes a fair adjustment, that American opinion was unanimous in its rejection.

Disappointing as M. Caillaux's proposition was to the American commissioners there was still optimistism on all sides today that ulti-

SNOWS IN VERMONT; HUB DUE TO SHIVER

The first snow of the season was reported in St. Johnsbury, Vt., where a slight flurry fell this morning. Evidences of the snow disappeared with the rising of the sun.

A killing frost, predicted for tomorrow, brought about a general overhauling of furnaces and unpacking of overcoats throughout Boston today.

The warninge caused consternation along the Cape, where frantic efforts are being made to harvest the cranberry crop before the cold snap. It is estimated that about one-quarter of the work remains to be done by nightfall.

The frost, which the Weather Bureau says will be particularly heavy in the lowlands of New England will be followed by a warm spell.

The first snowstorm of the season so far reported in Maine fell at Rangeley today, the flurries lasting an hour. There was a decided drop in temperature.

ALLEN FOUND GUILTY IN LEVER PLANT HOLDUP

John R. Allen of Washington street, Roslindale, better known under the more fanciful name of Lester Fogg, was today found guilty by a jury in Middlesex Superior Court of complicity in the holdup of the pay car of the First National Bank, near the plant of the Lever Brothers in Cambridge, on May 15.

He was to be sentenced as soon as his lawyer, William R. Scharton, arrived in court.

The technical charge was robbery while armed of Harold Coneeney, messenger of the bank, and the theft of $23,164.

The verdict was reached during the night, and returned, sealed, as soon as an agreement was achieved.

Allen, better known as Fogg, alleged society blackmailer, is still to be tried for the holdup of Herbert E. T. Hume, a messenger of the Guaranty Trust Company of Cam-

HURL MAN TO DEATH OFF PIER

FEAR BOOTLEGS KILLED COP

Worcester, Sept. 25.—Patrolman John F. Flenneran is missing. Police fear he may have been the victim of foul play at the hands of bootleggers who are believed to be operating on his beat. According to the police, the officer had not reported off duty after a patrol starting at midnight.

Flenneran was covering a dual beat in the Belmont Hill section. He was last heard from when he made a duty call at 5:30 a. m. today. He did not report at the eight o'clock roll call and after it was ascertained he was not at his home, No. 165 Belmon tstreet, searching parties were sent out.

4 HURT IN MALDEN AUTO-TROLLEY CRASH

Four men were injured, one dangerously, when a touring car in which they were riding crashed head-on with a trolley car today in Judson square, Malden.

The injured:

GEORGE F. RICHARDS, fifty years old, No. 15 Mechanic street, Wakefield. On danger list with fractured skull.

JAMES F. RICHARDS, brother of George, of same address. Serious abrasions and lacerations.

WILLIAM H. FUSE, No. 17 Lake street, Wakefield, cuts and abrasions.

CHARDES S. DUNN, No. 12 Mechanic street, cuts and bruises.

The noise of the crash and splintering glass, which showered over Ferry street, drew a crowd to the

POLICE COMB CITY FOR TWO SLAYERS IN T WHARF MYSTERY

Harbor police from the police boat Watchman, resumed dragging the harbor in the vicinity of T Wharf today in search of the body of an unidentified man whom witnesses saw hurled into the water by two companions, who fled.

The alleged murder has proved a mystery to the authorities.

One eyewitness has reported to the police, as have several others who claim they heard the man's cries, as he hurtled from the wharf into the water of the harbor.

The police believe the victim either was held up by the pair or was killed during a bootleggers' quarrel.

Eugene Powers, of No. 255 Dover street, telephoned the police that he had heard a man's screams followed by a splash, while he was on the wharf. Two men immediately ran from the wharf, he declared.

A squad was rushed to the wharf and the work of dragging the harbor was begun. Meanwhile, other squads of police combed the downtown section in search of the men seen running from the wharf.

Frank Woodbridge, a chauffeur, employed by the Springfield Overland Express, gave the police the first connected account of the affair.

Woodbridge said he was standing in a doorway at No. 66 Long Wharf when he noticed three men standing near the edge of the pier, between T Wharf and Long Wharf.

The men, who were barely discernible in the darkness were quarreling loudly, he declared.

After a few moments he heard a scream, he said, and saw a man's body hurled to the edge of the wharf and go turning, end over end, into the water.

Powers, in his statement to the police, said he was standing near the wharf, when he heard a scream. This was followed by a splash in the water, he added.

Charles E. Miner of the Hotel Central, No. 21-23 Green street, corroborated the story of Powers to the police. Miner told the investigators

'LOVE CHILD' FOUND IN SEARCH FOR HEIRESS

The "love child," the result of the clandestine romance of Miss Dorothy Dudley, missing Brockton heiress, and Ernest Briggs, the village Don Juan of Abington, is now with the girl's relatives in Calais, Me., according to a story told to detectives today by a relative of Briggs by marriage.

Another love child has been found in the care of a Raynham Centre woman. Its mother is Miss Irene Millard.

TELLS OF QUARREL.

Miss Millard succeeded Miss Dudley in the rambling affections of young Briggs, it is alleged. She is a strapping wohman of the grenadier type, capable of taking her featherweight lover over her knee.

Mrs. Myra Smith, who lives at tht Raynham Centre cottage, says Dorothy Dudley and Briggs quarreled bitterly because he would not order the Millard girls baby out and bring her own child on from Calais to be cared for.

And James W. Gore, father of Mrs. Eva Briggs of Holmes street, Hanson, said today that late in August Briggs and Miss Dudley spent a night in his daughter's house. She is the wife of Briggs's half brother. She understood they were married.

POLICE BEGIN DRAGGING FOR T WHARF VICTIM'S BODY

he was sitting in an automobile, talking with one of the watchmen on the wharf, when he heard what he believed was the shout of a man for "help" and then heard a splash.

The figures of two men fleeing from the scene, up through the blackness of the wharf and onto Atlantic avenue, were seen by the men, they stated, according to the accounts of the police.

When the men reached the edge of the pier, where the murder victim was believed to have been struck or hurled to his death, the waters again were still, and no sign of the drowning man could be seen through the darkness.

Patrolman O'Malley and other officers who made up the squad from the Milk street station who went to the scene under the command of Sergeant Frank Gilman, stripped off their coats and volunteered to dive into the waters to try and recover the body of the victim.

Owing to the darkness and the belief that the victim was beyond aid, this was considered useless. A call was sent for the police boat Watchman and a rowboat procured from the customs officials.

Within half an hour after the first report of the afair had been received, police had begun grappling operations in the hope of finding the body.

Sergeant Charles Carlson of the police boat Watchman directed the dragging operations, while the officers worked under the glare of search lights and the light of red flares.

4 DEAD ON 'JINX DAY' IN TOWN

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Sept. 25 (A. P.)—Two men were drowned, a man and his wife burned to death and two boys forced to leap from a second story window of their burning home—all within two hours today—in the vicinity of Ogdensburg.

Frank Jackson, 38, and Philip Henry, 35, members of the crew of the steamer Thompson, were drowned at the coal slip when they fell from the gangplank while boarding their ship.

Dr. J. B. Mann and his wife of Peterboro, Ont., were burned to death at Fernbank, near Brockville, Ontario.

Joseph and Edward Robillard leaped from a second story window to the pavement when, nearly suffocated, they awoke in their home here to find the house ablaze. Neither was seriously injured.

NO NEW AMERICANS AT NEXT CONSISTORY

Rome, Sept. 25 (I.N.S.)—Pope Pius plans to create no American cardinals at the November consistory, it was said at the Vatican today.

RODGERS CALLS FOR ADVISORY AIR BOARD

San Francisco, Sept. 25 (A.P.)—Emphatic indorsement of an advisory air board, such as that called by President Coolidge, to operate in conjunction with the Army and Navy departments for the development of this country's air service, was voiced by Commander John Rodgers at a banquet tendered him and the four members of the crew of the navy seaplane PN-9 No. 1.

The air board which Commander Rodgers recommended would not have the breadth of power of that advised by Colonel William Mitchell.

Commander Rodgers defended the Navy Department in its conduct of the attempted San Francisco-Hawaiian flight and in general in its handling of naval air affairs.

He denied that he or any of his men had been "compelled against their wills and better judgment" to attempt the Hawaiian flight. "The men in the naval air service, as in other branches, do not need pushing ahead so much as they need holding back," he declared.

"This was exemplified in the action of the pilots of land planes sent out to search for us and who disregarded radio instructions from their commander to return to their base when fear arose that such search by land planes was too hazardous."

"This country should have a competent advisory air board, not because the army and navy departments are not competent to supervise aircraft development, but so that in an emergency there will not be a flood of idle criticism directed at what some have been pleased to call 'swivel chair bureaucrats.' "

COL. RUPPERT NOW HEADS BREWERS' ASSOCIATION

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.)—Colonel Jacob Ruppert, president of the New York American League Baseball Club, has been elected president of the United States Brewers Association, succeeding Christian W. Fiegenspan of Newark, N. J. Mr. Fiegenspan resigned because of his objection to reported overtures by association members to the Anti-Saloon League looking to a compromise modification of the Volstead act.

Had No Necktie, Banned On Ship, Asks $100,000

Chicago, Sept. 25 (A.P.)—Alfred Howard thinks it worth $100,000 to go without a necktie aboard ship.

He brought suit against the White Star Line for that amount because, despite having paid for a first-class passage, he had to go second class to his native England, on the Homeric, for want of a cravat.

SAY BEER WAS FAR FROM 'NEAR'

The Harvard Company of Lowell, its officers and several employes, were before Judge Morton in the Federal Court today on the charge of manufacturing, possessing and transporting several hundred barrels of full strength beer. The officers of the corporation and its employes all pleaded not guilty and were held for trial in $1,000 bail each.

There were three indictments. One charged John A. Quinn, Herman Zeiner and George Dunn of Lowell with transporting sixty-four barrels of illegal beer on August 18, last. Another charged Frank G. Gilbert, Bartholomew Scannell, James R. Kelley and Harry D. Bowen of Lowell, Frank M. Wuest of Melrose, Fred J. Quinn of Ashton, R. I., and the Harvard Company with transporting 250 barrels on July 23, 235 barrels on July 24, 210 barrels July 11 and 225 barrels on July 25.

Gilbert, Scannell, Zeiner, Wuest, Quinn and the Harvard Company, together with William Grasberger, Frank Garretson, Edward Juerst and Ernest Abel are charged with violating their Government permit to brew near beer and with manufacturing great quantities of beer with the alcoholic remaining and withdrawing it from the brewery during July and August.

FIRST FRENCH DEBT OFFER IS REJECTED

mately an agreement will be reached.

M. Caillaux's original proposition amounted, substantially, to this:

Consolidation of the entire French debt, war, post-war and supplies, into a single sum, with the accrued interest scaled down from 5 per cent. to a figure approximating 2 per cent.

A graduated scale of payments, beginning modestly at $20,000,000 annually for a considerable period, and then gradually increasing to an approximately $70,000,000 maximum during the latter years of the agreement, the whole to bear an interest rate of the same 2 per cent. or slightly less.

Over a period of sixty-two years, the average life of the funding agreements, concessions of this nature would amount to billions of dollars, and amount virtually to cancellation of a huge part of the existing debt.

BURDEN ON TAX PAYERS.

The American commissioners were quick to ppint out that M. Caillaux's offer really constituted no offer at all, inasmuch as France is now paying $20,000,000 a year to the American government as interset on the $400,000,000 debt contracted immediately after the war in the purchase of surplus A. E. F. supplies, which, incidentally, were worth considerably more than a billion dollars.

Thus, were the offers accepted it would mean that France would pay for a considerable period of years precisely the same on her whole debt as she is now paying on a comparatively minor part of the debt.

This phase of it, however, was not so unacceptable to the American Commissioners as was the interest reduction asked by M. Caillaux.

Each of the seven funding agreements already reached with debtor nations carry interest at a rate approximately slightly more than 3¼ per cent.

The American government is paying 4¼ per cent. on this same money to holders of Liberty bonds, thus taking a net loss of one per cent. which is met every year by American tax payers.

scene. The injured men were extricated from the wreckage with difficulty and rushed to Malden Hospital.

The motorman of the car, Ralph Potter, ducked a shower of glass, as he slammed on his emergency brakes, and succeeded in escaping injury.

The cause of the collision was undetermined. Fuse, owner of the touring car, was driving toward Everett and the trolley car was bound toward Malden square. Neither vehicle was making a corner and witnesses of the accident could not explain why the automobile came in the car's path.

abdomen, as the young man cooly continued:

"You see that? We're not playing! C'mon, kick in, before I get rough with you, too!"

Seizing Miss Bayes, the gangster flung her forcibly back into the automobile, while one of his comrades stood guard nearby and the third started the motor of their car.

"Now, are you coming across, or do I have to beat your head off?" Miss Bayes' assailant threatened, twisting her wrists and fumbling for her pocketbook on the floor of the car.

TWISTED WRISTS.

His companion warned him, as Patrolman Bergen, a motorcycle policeman, turned into West End avenue, from 90th street, and the two hurried to their own car.

Miss Bayes, screaming frantically, ran into the roadway and hailed Bergen, while the one thug, turning from his seat in their moving car, fired a snot in her direction.

Seeing a uniformed doorman coming from a nearby hallway, the gunmen opened fire on him. Bergen, giving chase, lost them on Riverside Drive.

Carlow, who has worked for Miss Bayes four years, is reported in critical condition at Knickerbocker Hospital.

U. S. Banks Plan $742,500,000 In Foreign Loans

Based on inquiries from foreign governments, municipalities and industries, the Associated Press learned from banking circles that these loans are in prospect for this year:

Germany	$200,000,000
France	180,000,000
Italy	100,000,000
Belgium	75,000,000
Czecho-Slovakia	70,000,000
Japan	50,000,000
Austria	37,500,000
Hungary	30,000,000

Scores of other loans, ranging from $1,000,000 to $25,000,000, are listed as possibilities.

bridge, on May 27, 1924, and the theft of $15,500.

Allen is thirty-two years old, well dressed, plausible and quite capable of taking the part of a gentleman, superficially.

He was arrested in July, just after his father was buried in a Quincy cemetery. His mother sister and wife fainted when he was taken.

Other complaints against the prisoner probably will be allowed to lie, as it is assumed he will get a stiff sentence on the initial conviction.

During his trial there was much jockeying between counsel, and his lawyer tried to make much of the fact that various witnesses failed to identify him. But other witnesses did.

AMBULANCE 'SPEEDER' LOSES LICENSE

SHE'S RICHEST YOUNG WIDOW IN U. S.

Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, who inherits an estate of more than $7,000,000 by the death of her husband, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, whom she married only two years ago. She thus becomes the richest young widow in America.

MILLIONS TO WIDOW ONLY 20

New York, Sept. 25.—By the will of the late Reginald C. Vanderbilt, filed in Portsmouth, R. I., Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, to whom he was married a little over two years ago, becomes the richest young widow in the country.

Mr. Vanderbilt made his wife the residuary legatee of his estate after providing $5,000,000 in trust for his two children, and making a few minor bequests. Mrs. Vanderbilt thus comes into a fortune of about $7,000,000.

When Mr. Vanderbilt married Gloria Morgan in March, 1923, she was only eighteen. She is now, therefore, little more than twenty. She was Mr. Vanderbilt's second wife.

Two children survived Mr. Vanderbilt, who died suddenly at his country place, Sandy Point Farm, R. I., September 4. The first issue of his first marriage, is Cathleen, born in 1904. The second child was born to Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, February 21 of last year. By the will the two children share alike.

The will is dated May 11, 1923, some two months after Mr. Vanderbilt's second marriage.

GOODWIN PUNISHES DRIVER

Registrar Frank A. Goodwin today suspended the operator's license of Herbert R. Sanford, an automobile driver of the City Hospital.

Goodwin charges Sanford has "terrorized" citizens of South Boston by his wild driving.

"It was time to take Sanford off the road," he says.

According to the registrar, Sanford was involved in an accident at D street and West Broadway, South Boston, September 5 in which Mrs. Sarah Kane and two children were injured, one of the latter being in a baby carriage at the time.

In the South Boston [illegible] the ambulance driver was later acquitted of the charge of operating so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public. Goodwin's decision to suspend Sanford's license came despite this decision.

CALLED A "WILD DRIVER."

In commenting on his action today, Goodwin said further:

"Ambulances have enough to do without adding more victims. Even though an ambulance or a piece of fire apparatus has the right of way, the driver has no more right to operate at an unreasonable rate of speed than anyone else.

"At the time the case came up in court witnesses indicated that the ambulance was going forty miles an hour. My inspectors tell me Sanford has the reputation of being a wild driver. He has been abusing his privilege as an ambulance driver and has terrorized South Boston citizens."

Sanford lives at No. 24 Chestnut street, Jamaica Plain. He is employed by the public works department of the city.

SHOTGUN POSSE HUNTS 'PEEPER'

Westboro, Sept. 25.—Loaded shotguns manned by irate residents are today waiting the reappearance here of a "Peeping Tom" whose activities the last few days have terrorized this community.

Police activity centred today upon a search of Cedar Swamp, where the intruder was last seen. A barking dog aroused Clarence Gates, who discovered the marauder about to enter his home. Gates fired at the man. A blood-stained trail leading to the swamp revealed the route of retreat. Police found evidence that he had been living there.

The man is said to be clothed in baggy trousers of light color and a dark coat. He is described as being of medium size and weighing about 160 pounds.

POWER BOAT HITS ROCKS

New Bedford, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—The power boat Velma, owned by N. B. Wolworth, New York, and bound from Quincy to New York city, went on the rocks off Cutyhunk light today. The craft was pulled off by coast guardsmen and, leaking badly, was beached at Cuttyhunk harbor.

The craft was in charge of J. A. Johnson, New York, and grounded when anchors dragged in an early morning blow.

GIRL NAMED EDITOR OF AMHERST "AGGIE" PAPER

Amherst, Sept. 25.—College tradition was upset today when it was announced that Miss Mary T. Boyd, a bobbed-hair senior of Massachusetts Agricultural College, would be editor-in-chief of the "Massachusetts Collegian," the newspaper published weekly by the students. The feminine invasion of the journalistic field was well received. Only a few opposed to co-eds holding positions of honor in academic activities expressed disapproval. Miss Boyd is from Jacksonville, Florida. She was editor of the "Index," the college annual.

DESERTED HER INFANT IN RAILWAY STATION

Lawrence, Sept. 25.—Constantly haunted by the smiling face of her little two-weeks-old baby boy whom she locked in a traveling case and abandoned in the Boston & Maine South Station over four months ago, Georgiana Chenard of No. 86 Water street, 21-year-old mother of the infant, returned to this city and gave herself up.

The abandoned boy was found by police officers in a telephone booth locked in a traveling bag on May 18. From the time that the infant was imprisoned until it was found by the police he had exhausted the air supply and was on the verge of suffocation. The baby responded to medical treatment and was placed at the municipal farm.

Convulsed with sobs and pleadings to be allowed to see her child again, the girl-mother yesterday afternoon unfolded her story to Policewoman Nora E. Herlihy. She related a story of misfortune early in her life and of the circumstances under which the child was born.

Unable to face her parents, she made her plans and abandoned the baby and went to New York city. From there she went to New Jersey, where she worked in various positions, earning scarcely enough to keep herself alive. From New Jersey she went to Maine, she said, where after several weeks of torture suffered from a troubled conscience she decided to return here and gi herself up.

Police authorities stated today th the identity of the mother of t child was known to them shor after she disappeared. A clue fr a garage employe led them to h home where her father identifi the traveling case in which the i fant was found.

Miss Chenard will appear in D trict Court today charged with ab doning an infant child.

QUINN, OUSTED CHIEF, LOSES

Judge Ralph W. Reeves of Lynn court today turned down the last appeal of William L. Quinn, former chief of police of Swampscott, who was discharged by the selectmen on charges that he was implicated with rum-runners. Quinn now faces a federal charge of the same nature.

According to the law, Quinn was allowed to appeal, following his discharge. The appeal was made to Judge Reeves.

For weeks, Judge Reeves has been reviewing the testimony.

Today he ruled against Quinn and sustained the selectmen.

HEIRESS' 'LOVE CHILD' FOUND IN MAINE

Briggs' Father Says He Ejected Son When He Took the Dudley Girl to Home

Gore, "the girl told Eva they were not married; that she had borne Briggs a child three years before, while visiting her mother at Tacoma, Wash., and that the child was with relatives in Maine.

"She had just come down from Maine. We put Ernest out. He has always been a little rat. But a few days later he returned to take Dorothy away to see her father in Bridgewater. They did not return."

In the meantime Dorothy Dudley is still missing; has not been seen, so far as the authorities know, since she stepped into the woods near the Brockton line a week ago Sunday night, after a quarrel with Briggs over nobody knows what.

Her mother, Mrs. Eva Dudley, of Tacoma, Wash., wired the chief of police at Abington today demanding to know what "the girl's father was doing about it."

At the same time, Chief Nickerson received an anonymous letter from "A Friend," telling of an alleged visit of Briggs and Miss Dudley to the house in Holmes street in the town of Hanson last Summer. mer.

The hostess, the writer said, thought that they were married.

"About ten months ago," said Mrs. Smith, "Ernest Briggs of Abington, came to my house in response to an advertisement I had put in a Brockton paper offering to board a baby. I have one little adopted boy, and my husband and I wished to add another child to our family.

"Arrangements were made with Briggs to adopt a child that he stated was born out of wedlock to him and a young girl, who gave her name as Irene Millard of Weymouth, in the Boston Homeopathic hospital. Shortly afterward he brought the young mother and the five weeks' old baby girl to me.

SUGGESTED ADOPTION.

"The mother of the baby has visited her child only rarely during the year, sending it clothes very infrequently. Both she and Briggs wanted me to adopt the child and offered me $50 if I should do so.

"A little while after Christmas, Ernest Briggs drove out with a young woman whom he introduced to me as Dorothy Dudley. As I knew the whole story of Briggs and Miss Millard—Miss Dudley burst out almost immediately with her interest in the affair and why she had insisted on Briggs driving her out to see me.

"'I know you know all about Miss Millard,' she said, 'and you might as well know about me. I don't think it's fair that Ernest should support her baby and get you to take care of it when he is the father of my baby, too.'

"The girl seemed almost jealously wild about Briggs' other child. She insisted that Briggs had ought to marry her and support her child, and refuse to care longer for Miss Millard's baby. She even insisted one time when she encountered Miss Millard out at my house, that the other mother should take back her baby and keep it in Bridgewater.

"The Dudley girl seemed almost desperate. More than once she came out to see me and the baby. She told me that she worshipped and idolized Briggs, and that he wielded a strange power over her. She decided to purchase an old touring car of mine for the sum of $175. She paid down one instalment of $35 and one night made the trip on the trolley to give the second month's instalment of $50. She asked me to cash three trolley checks to give her enough money to get back to Brockton, and when I told her that I did not need the entire $50 she insisted in a sort of frenzy that I must accept the whole of the money.

"Her mind seemed set on a certain definite purpose — and she couldn't be moved. The girl was really attractive and well educated—but I felt that she was wildly in love with Briggs."

No Bridal Veil For Her! Dons 17th Century Garb

London, Sept. 25 (I.N.S.).—Traditional bridal gowns were thrown into the discard and something new in the way of wedding garb offered today by the Hon. Pamela Paget, daughter of Lady Paget, who became the bride of Lord Glenconner.

The Hon. Pamela wore a tight-bodiced gown of gold and silver tissue, with a flowing bell-shaped skirt and bell-shaped sleeves, a costume reminiscent of Elizabethan days.

The marriage of Lord Glenconner disposes of one of England's most sought after eligible bachelors and one of its biggest land owners.

Besides the bride's medieval gown there were many bridesmaids and pages, all dressed in green, blue and gold costumes of the 17th century.

WAKEFIELD-TO LYNNFIELD BUS

The Wakefield selectmen today notified the Boston & Maine Railroad that they have granted the road a permit to operate buses between Wakefield and Lynnfield.

The bus service will offset the recent curtailment of train service on the Newburyport branch line, over which trains ran from Boston to Newburyport via Wakefield Centre and other way stations beyond Wakefield. This service was reduced to two trains a day.

The Boston & Maine buses will run from the upper Wakefield station on the main line over to the Wakefield Centre station and thence to Lynnfield square, a distance of about five miles and serving passengers who formerly used the branch line stations, Lowell street, Montrose, Lynnfield Centre, Lynnfield and other stations.

Officials of the road are understood to have promised the selectmen that the service will be frequent, with buses scheduled to meet all trains at the upper Wakefield station, thus providing possibly better service than the trains formerly did on the branch line.

AUTO IS UPSET IN CHASE

Pursuit of two men in a touring car through Shawmut avenue today ended when their automobile turned on its side at the corner of Windsor street, Roxbury, and they were arrested on the spot by Patrolman Hallett.

William Wetmore, Lamartine street, Jamaica Plain, the driver, was charged with speeding, drunkenness and driving while under the influence of liquor when he was arraigned in Roxbury court.

John Crowley, Amory street, Jamaica Plain, owner of the car, was charged with permitting an intoxicated person to drive his car. Both cases were continued.

Hallett, who was off duty at the time, said he was nearly run down by the touring car at Dover street and Shawmut avenue. He leaped into his own car, which was standing at the curb, and gave chase. Wetmore apparently tried to take too sharp a corner into Windsor street and the car turned over, the occupants sliding out uninjured.

NEW DIVORCE FOR 'TOMMY' MAXWELL

"$300 Punch in Nose" Figures in Case Against Second Husband

"Tommy" Maxwell, the beautiful, is free again, and today she stepped out of Suffolk Probate Court with two marriages behind her—and two divorces.

Partly because of a 300 punch on the nose she alleged she received, is "Tommy" Maxwell—but really Mrs. Sadie E. Cohen and before that Mrs. Lewis Marks—free of her second matrimonial bond.

Her testimony in court that brought a decree nisi today from Maxwell B. Cohen of Boston had it that he punched her on the nose $300 worth, when she asked him for that sum—in money but not in a punch.

The couple were married in New York November 25, 1922. The best reckoners make that Thanksgiving Day, but whether it was thanksgiving or not "Tommy" Maxwell, which is her pet name among her Brookline "girl friends," didn't bring out.

The $300 punch on the nose came last Spring, according to Mrs. Cohen, who charged cruel and abusive treatment.

The beautiful Mrs. Cohen's first husband was Lewis Marks, Boston lawyer, whom she cut loose in 1922 after a hectic—according to her own testimony—married life.

After she had filed her divorce suit in Suffolk County Marks brought one in Norfolk County charging her with unfaithfulness. But she beat his suit to the wire.

Marks agreed to pay her alimony in $500 instalments every six months, but he had the agreement vacated in court when he alleged that she had married Cohen in New York before the legal "nisi" six months had expired.

WOULD LIMIT 'TUB' DAMAGES

New York, Sept. 25.—Counsel for the Mackinac Company and the Blackstone Valley Transportation Company, owners and charterers, respectively, of the steamer Mackinac, on which fifty-five persons were killed and forty-six injured off Newport, R. I., August 18, today asked the Federal Court in Brooklyn to rule that their liability for damages be limited to the cost of the vessel.

Judge A. A. Inch named George C. Wildermuth of Brooklyn as a special commissioner to review more than 100 damage suits against the two concerns.

HIP SING TONG CHARGES PLOT, IN U. S. APPEAL

Demands Probe of On Leong's Commercial Rivalry by the Federal Trade Board

Washington, Sept. 25 (A.P.)—Charging a conspiracy is on foot to interfere with its commercial operations, the Hig Sing Tong has appealed to the Federal Trade Comsion to investigate the activities of its rival, the On Leong Tong, and the background of the Tong warfare in general.

Through its atorneys and Louis Y. Yee of Cleveland, mentioned in the complaint as the Hip Sing Tong's authorized representative, the Hig Sing gives its version of the underlying causes of the clashes between the two Chinese organizations, a recent revival of which resulted in many deaths throughout the East and Middle West.

The petitioning Tong charges the On Leong Tong, also known as the Chinese Merchants' Association, with headquarters in New York, with specific acts of conspiracy, intimidation and violence against nine Chinese merchants, whose names were given, and approximately one hundred others.

RUM-CHASER IN 12-HOUR FIGHT WITH GALE

Wireless Saves the Hub Craft After Being Tossed About Open Sea in Storm

Gloucester, Sept. 25.—Pounded by heavy seas for twelve nerve-racking hours, Coast Guard Patrol Boat, No. 278 was towed into port today by her sister craft, Patrol No. 192.

None of the members of the crew was the worse for wear, although it was one of the roughest and wildest nights a ship ever wallowed through off Gloucester.

No. 278, which sails from Base 5, in South Boston, got into trouble yesterday afternoon when two of the valves in her Liberty motor equipment went Bolshevik.

Only the fact that she was equipped with wireless, one of the few boats of her class so provided, prevented her from being swept out to sea.

She was thirty miles northeast of Thatcher's Island at the time, witn no funnel or sail in sight.

An S.O.S. message was flashed through the air to Coast Guard headquarters and a few minutes later the No. 193 was on her errand of rescue.

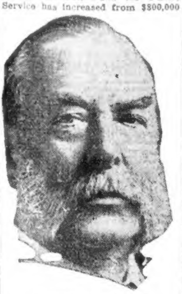
When she reached the side of the disabled craft from South Boston, the latter was wallowing helpltssly in the trough of the sea and in a fair way to be capsized.

Boatswain Edward Couynoyer was in command of the No. 278, and Boatswain Austin Troy commanded the boat that went to her aid.

BANKER BAKER BUILDS UP FUND FOR RADICALS

Garland's $800,000 Is Almost Doubled Despite Big Sums Disbursed

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.)—Radical organizations, receiving assistance from a fund created by Charles Garland of North Carver, Mass., "to fight capitalism," have made more than $1,000,000 in Wall street in the last two years.



GEORGE F. BAKER

The American Fund for Public Service has increased from $800,000 to $1,500,000, Morris L. Ernst, counsel for the foundation, revealed, despite the fact that $500,000 has been given away to various radical organizations and publications.

"Some of our securities rose in value 2,000 per cent in two years," Mr. Ernst said. "A large part of our capital was stock in the First National Bank which increased more than $1,000 a share. It shows that radicals are conservative when it comes to handling money on a large scale."

"JOKE" ON BAKER.

Dr. Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, described the fund's success in making money in Wall street as one of the greatest jokes of the season.

"It is a joke on us," he said. "It is a joke on George F. Baker, chairman of the board of directors of the First National Bank. Haw! Haw! Haw! Think of George F. Baker (one of the richest men in the country) making money for the Radical movement!"

Garland, Harvard graduate and Socialist, established the fund in 1922 with the $800,000 he refused to accept as his share of the estate of his father, James A. Garland, Boston millionaire. He is now living on a farm near Easton, Pa.

"Private property is the main cause of unhappiness," Garland said at the time. "The longer you have money the harder it is to see straight."

NEARING IS LEADER.

Dr. Scott Nearing is president of the Foundation which is incorporated in Delaware. Radical newspapers in Chicago, Minneapolis, Seattle, Oklahoma and New York have been subsidized in part.

The growth of the fund was revealed in connection with an announcement that broadcasting rights for stated periods daily are to be purchased in a radio station with about $50,000 of the fund.

Dr. Thomas and Mr. Ernst said that Radical and Liberal discussions of politics, sociology and economics would be broadcast at stated hours each day because the press and radio have disseminated one-sided opinions. The programs also will include jazz and classical music, dramatic selections and talks on literature.

Shortly after announcement of the Radicals' radio plans Cardinal Hayes dedicated radio station WLWL at the Paulist church and praised it as a means of helping to stifle "lying propaganda" and of scattering "the seeds of Truth to the Winds of Heaven."

42 CHINESE WILL BE DEPORTED TOMORROW

New York, Sept. 25.—Forty two Chinese, arrested in recent Chinatown raids in which 1,200 Orientals were rounded up for suspected violation of the immigration laws, will be deported tomorrow. Two hundred and twenty-two more await a similar fate and the deportation of the entire batch will cost the Federal government $50,000.

LICENSES TO BE SOUGHT BY REALTORS

Boston Exchange Members Name Committee to Frame Bill

Appointment of a committee to consider any plan which may be introduced in the Legislature this year to license real estate brokers, agents and salesmen was the result of a session of the Boston Real Estate Exchange.

The committee includes Francis R. Bangs, chairman; Harry C. Byrne, William Pease O'Brien, Frank H. Purington, Frederic Viaux, Parker Webb and Carl S. Whittier.

Arguments in favor of the licensing plan by Howard Whitcomb and against by Henry Whitmore were given.

Delegates to the annual convention of the Massachusetts Association of Real Estate Boards, which is to be conducted at Springfield October 16 and 17, were also instructed on the Exchange's attitude on the licensing proposal.

GLYNN GOING AHEAD WITH CAMPAIGN

Commissioner Waits on No Man in Making Bid for Mayoralty

While General Edward L. Logan and John F. Fitzgerald remain in the trenches, each awaiting the zero hour to launch his attack upon the mayoralty of Boston, or to announce his retirement from the fight, the cherub candidate, Fire Commissioner Teddy Glynn, is hastily making hay.

Other candidates are willing to lie more or less perdu, planning their campaigns, until the Logan or Fitzgerald announcement is given to a breathless, political world.

But not Teddy. So anxious is he to gather the aforesaid hay in stacks of votes, that he is doing his work where he is best liked, and where he would be bound to receive a heavy vote in any event.

APPLAUSE IN CHARLESTOWN.

He opened up in Roxbury, not only the district where he, as a political infant, crawled over the political threshold, but also the stronghold of Mayor Curley, the commissioner-candidate's fatherly guardian and mentor.

The rotound candidate followed this strategic move by invading Charlestown, where he was received with wild acclaim. Here, Teddy was well received, not because of Mayor Curley's patronage, but because the commissioner himself is popular and has allied himself with men who are very strong from City square to "The Neck."

The word has gone out, with or without authority from those most concerned, that the Logan and Fitzgerald ultimata will be given out Sunday morning, after both men have presented their qualifications to the Democratic City Committee tomorrow.

While most of the electorate are waiting for these announcements complacently enough as it is realized that the decision in each case is a momentous one, there are certain candidates who would like to force something out of either the soldier-jurist or the glorifier of "Sweet Adeline."

These, strange as it may seem, are not mayoral candidates, but the scores of candidates for the City Council. It is their contention that they cannot get their cases before the public because of the armistice in things political.

Everybody, they contend, is discussing the mayoral situation, and little attention is given to the hopefuls who wish to be members of the new council.

GOO-GOOS RETICENT.

Each day the prediction of the very wise political sharp-shooters anent the Good Government indorsement of a mayoral candidate seems to be more nearly based on fact.

They prophesied that because of the civil war that is now being waged in their own ranks over the question of endorsing Logan, or Nichols, or even Kelliher or O'Brien that the Goo Goos would endorse nobody at all, thus giving everybody an even chance as far as Goo Goo votes are concerned, and at the same time taking off the curse of "picking always a loser," that seems to hang over the reform organization.

FIND SLAIN MAN IN TAXI CRASH

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Collision of a sedan and a taxicab on the upper East Side today resulted in the discovery of a man's body in the sedan, which was deserted by three occupants after the crash. The dead man had been shot through the head. Police believed that the three men in the sedan were driving it to the East River with the intention of sinking it to conceal the crime. A Jewish prayer book and $1,430 were found in the dead man's pockets.

$3,000,000 SHORTAGE IN TRUMBULL STEEL

Warren, O., Sept. 25 (A.P.)—A statement by directors of the Trumbull Steel Company on the standing of the company as of July 31, shows that the "material discrepancy" reported in their meeting several weeks ago was approximately $3,000,000. Ex-Pres. Jonathan Warner had turned over to the company $1,533,618.83 in property and 59,012 shares of the company's common stock to cover his personal indebtedness to the company, estimated by the auditors at $3,000,000.

MALDEN WOMEN FINED AS OWNERS OF STILLS

"The second offence will be $500 each, if you are brought before me again," said Judge Bruce in Malden Court, as he fined two women $100 each for violation of the prohibition laws.

The defendants were Mrs. Jennie Saranovitz, of No. 18 Lombard court, Malden, and Mrs. Sara Lebovitz, of No. 84 Warren avenue, Malden. The police found two large stills in their homes.

A THOUSAND YEARS FROM NOW! Everybody will be bald, men and women will wear the same kind of clothing, nobody will ever sleep, there will be no cold weather and no ugly people, according to Science's newest prophecy. Read all about it, see how a gifted artist has pictured it, in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Soviets Will Open People's Bank in Paris

Paris, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—A Russian bank which will be prepared to finance all commercial operations between Soviet Russia and France and Belgium, is to be opened shortly. It is to be known as the People's bank.

M. Gavriloff, chairman of the bank, has just received authorization from Moscow to open the institution.

AIRMEN SAVED BY FREIGHTER BOUND FOR HUB

Rescue Off Nantucket Lightship; Men Transferred to Cutter Erickson

The Coast Guard Cutter Erickson is due in Boston today, bearing three airplane adventurers who had narrow escapes from death when their plane was disabled off Nantucket Lightship.

One of the rescued men, according to the radio report, is Lieutenant Leo M. Willinger of the Maryland National Guard who has been missing from Baltimore since August 1. With him are C. W. Wood, the pilot, and Patrick Donohue, a passenger.

The men were rescued by the crew of the freight steamship Eastern Victor just as their plight seemed the most desperate. Their frail craft was at the mercy of high seas and a strong wind with little hope of rescue until the welcome freighter was sighted.

The radio from Captain McCullough of the freighter said that the men had been transferred to the Erickson, which started for Boston.

Lieutenant Willinger had been reported flying near New York, but there has been no report of any missing plane, nor was the National Guard lieutenant sent out for any military purpose.

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

DON'T DELAY IF YOU DESIRE 2-CENT AUTO

An End Comes of All Good Things, Even This Offer, So Act Now

By PACKARD BUICK ESSEX.

There comes an end to all good things and there must be a time when the Boston Evening American no longer will offer a Packard sedan, a Buick sedan and an Essex coach, for 2 cents apiece.

I offer this reminder today by way of suggesting to the proscrastinator, the chap who promises himself to "get around to that by tomorrow," that time is flying.

While a date for the termination of this competition has not been set, I can tell by the countenance of the Editor as he studies my baskets of mail that he is almost ready to give the signal for "curtains."

TOO LATE, SOON.

Then, the Board of Editorial Judges will be named, the work of sorting and examining will begin the most appealing of the letters will be set aside for further consideration and, friends, it will be too late for the postponing person to submit his offering.

DO you want one of these splendid motor cars for the small price—if one may call it that—of 2 cents?

Two cents!

There isn't a bellhop or a barber from Bangor down to Bridgeport who would not be insulted by so small a tip. You couldn't make a telephone call for it, have even your O'Sullivans polished, buy a package of gum. There isn't a thing in the world you can buy for two cents except a postage stamp, or come to think of it, a newspaper.

And here we offer you, for only 2 cents, a Packard, a Buick or an Essex car!

New cars—not used cars—of the latest model!

The Packard cost $2,844.00, the Buick sedan $1,705.50, and the Essex coach $912.90.

Here is how you may have your pick of them, for 2 cents, cash:

Write a letter of not more than 250 words, taking for your subject: "Why I Like the Boston Evening American," and mail it to me, in care of this office. If it is one of the best three letters received you will be given your choice of the three automobiles.

DO IT NOW.

The second car will go to the writer of the second best letter, the remaining car to the person whose letter is adjudged next in merit.

There is the whole story, and the question remains:

Do you, or do you not, want a first-class automobile for "next to nothing?"

Take my advice and write today. Tell your friends about the opportunity. The next best thing to owning a good motor car is having a pal who owns one.

There are few rules. Write on only one side of the paper. Be sure to stay within 250 words. Do not write more than 250. Place your own name and address in the upper left-hand corner of your manuscript. Mail the letter to "Mr. Packard Buick Essex," in care of the Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

All who read the Boston Evening American are eligible, regardless of age or sex and no matter where they live. Only employes of the Evening American and allied publications are barred.

I shall print another "specimen" letter tomorrow, but Duty tells me to repeat the admonition I tried to give you in the opening paragraphs of this report, namely, that this offer of three automobiles is not going to remain open indefinitely.

Who'll take them?

NEWSSTAND THIEF PAYS FINE OF $25

After severely lecturing Fred Eusher of Fairfield street, Dedham, for stealing money from the news stand of Anthony Gagliard, fourteen-year-old newsboy, Judge Sanborn of the Dedham District Court yesterday imposed a fine of $25.

The newsboy operates several news stands in the vicinity of the Charles River Bridge, and for some time he has been troubled by money being taken from the top of the papers, where it had been left by his patrons.

A THOUSAND YEARS FROM NOW! Everybody will be bald, men and women will wear the same kind of clothing, nobody will ever sleep, there will be no cold weather and no ugly people, according to science's newest prophecy. DOCTOR AND WIFE BURNED TO DEATH IN COTTAGE

Brockville, Ont., Sept. 25. (A.P.)—Dr. J. B. Mann and his wife of Peterborough, Ont., were burned to death early today in a fire that destroyed a cottage at Fernbank, near here, which they were occupying as guests of Dr. George Imerle, of Rochester, N. Y.

William Brightman of Rochester, staying in an adjoining cottage, made a fruitless attempt at rescue.

"MASKED FLIER" DYING; PARACHUTE FAILED HIM

Chicago, Sept. 25 (A.P.)—Failure of his parachute to open after he had leaped from an airplane 3,000 feet aloft, resulted in probable fatal injuries to an unidentified commercial aviator at Morton Grove Flying Field. The flyer, said to be an Army veteran, would give no name other than his professional title "The Masked Flyer."

Buying of Furs Revolutionized

CAUTION!

Beware of catchy advertisements of fur concerns who claim they perform all kinds of miracles, such as, one-half price sales; $200 coats for $79; bought out manufacturers; sample models; all kinds of worthless guarantees, etc., etc.

Do not be deceived by these clever subterfuges which are insulting to the intelligence of New England women. Dependable Furs are NOT lower in price than last month. In fact, they are HIGHER in some cases.

Avoid the costly experience of others and trade with dependable firms ONLY, who make no exaggerated claims which cannot be carried out.

MONTE IS BACK AND DENYING HE IS DEAD

Count Thinks He Is Convincing Doubters He's a Substantial Ghost

With great difficulty, Count Paul Monte, who figured prominently as co-respondent in the Grover divorce case last Spring, succeeded today in living down reports of his death.

"Say, you're dead!" was the greeting with which Monte was met when he appeared in Winthrop and went to a garage for his flashy roadster.

"You're another," retorted Monte.

The car was padlocked for safekeeping until Monte's estate or heirs should claim it and it was only after long argument that the garage-man released the car.

Far greater difficulty was met with when the debonair "count" tried to gain access to his safety deposit vault at a downtown bank.

Monte believes he has now successfully spread the belief that, although he may be a ghost, he is a pretty substantial one who can drive automobiles and needs money for food and those sporty Monte sartorial effects that dazed the courtroom crowds at the Grover trial in Salem.

Monte was reported dead while he was dangerously ill with influenza in a hospital at Staten Island, N. Y.

"My physician, Dr. Presley, died and I think that in some manner his death was ascribed to me," said Monte.

BROTHER SAVES LIFE OF FIRE CAPTAIN

Warwick, R. I., Sept. 25.—Deaf to the warnings hurled at him, Raymond Reynolds braved smoke and flame to carry his brother, Fire Captain George Reyolds, to safety from the top floor of the Biltmore Hotel, one of four buildings at Oakland Beach destroyed in a $60,000 fire believed of incendiary origin.

Captain Reynolds was overcome by smoke as he attempted to shut a door to cut off the fire. Raymond, a six-footer, smashed his way to the top floor and picking the inert body up in his arms quickly reached the open. The fireman was revived by first aid treatment.

The fire for a time threatened the entire midway and Summer cottages.

BAIL IN COUNTERFEIT CASE SET AT $10,000

Lawrence, Sept. 25.—Joseph Camaratta of Garden street, Lawrence, was held in $10,000 for trial in Federal court when he pleaded not guilty to passing counterfiet twenty dollar Federal reserve notes. Camaratta was arrested by Sergeant Daniel P. Kiley following an investigation of several counterfeit notes which the defendant is alleged to have passed on storekeepers. Federal agents later arrested the man on a Federal warrant.

portation, we should be better off than we are.

OUR CROPS are worth billions every year. That's encouraging. In our mines and oil wells are hundreds of billions stored away, and that's encouraging.

The unused water power of this nation is worth tens of billions, and other tens of billions for irrigation afterward. That's encouraging, and also the fact that in the atmosphere above there are endless billions' worth of nitrogen, which can be brought down by electrical power.

BUT THERE is a greater wealth, and it figures more important.

One single city, New York, has, for the first time in its history, MORE THAN ONE MILLION CHILDREN ENROLLED IN ITS PUBLIC SCHOOL CLASSES.

That is the REAL wealth of today, and the real power of the future.

TAKE AWAY those children, and this country, with all its mines, water power and fertile soil, would amount to as little as it did when a few Indians possessed it and spent their time murdering each other.

JOHN HULBERT, official executioner at Sing Sing prison, quits his job after killing 140 in the electric chair. For this he has been paid $21,000—$150 for each killing.

Not bad pay for merely throwing a switch and seeing that the current is O. K. But it must be disagreeable work.

Will the retiring executioner ever meet, on the other shore, the 140 that he sent on ahead? If so, what will they say to each other? Thank him, very likely.

It is difficult to find another executioner, because he must be a trained electrician, willing to kill for a living. It should be not difficult, but IMPOSSIBLE, to find such a man in a civilized State.

M'MILLAN SHIPS WIN BATTLE WITH GALES

Arctic Explorers Ride Out Big Storms; Radio Cut Off for 48 Hours

Washington, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Severe gales are whipping the northern coast where the MacMillan expedition ships Peary and Bowdoin are cruising, but both vessels are safe ,the Peary reported today in a wireless despatch to the National Geographic Society.

The Bowdoin, after being out of wireless touch with the Peary for 48 hours, wos located in a cove off the Greenland coast nead Godthaab, waiting for the gales to subside. The Peary is in the vicinity of Battle Harbar, Labrador.

Some uneasiness was felt aboard the Peary for a time because of failure to establish radio communication with the Bowdoin.

HERRICK EXONERATED OF "BEAUTY LIST" THEFT

Washington, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Manuel Herrick, former representative from Oklahoma, has been exonerated of the charge of taking without permission a list of beauty contest entrants from the files of his employer, a private detective of this city. Herrick, who at one time figured in a breach of promise suit with his stenographer on Capitol Hill, was upheld in his contention that the property alleged to have been taken was his own.

Shore Colonists Entertain As Season Draws to Close

MISS JANE PETERS, a guest at the dinner for visiting navy officers, staged by the British Minister Henry Getty Chilton and Mrs. Chilton, at their Manchester place.

ONE BY ONE THE SMART Shore colonists write finis to their seasons, houses are closed and families depart townward for the oncoming Winter. Witness the gay, neighborly set living down at Nahant during the Summer, with rendezvous at the Nahant Club. Summer jollifications there wind up on Saturday evening with the last dinner dance of the season.

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS CURTIS, JR. (Mary Sloan Colt), have a dinner party of sixteen that evening. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jaques of Gloucester street and Nahant entertain on Saturday. Also a hostess at the festal finale, there is Miss Penelope Curtis, daughter of Mrs. Edwin U. Curtis.

IT IS MISS CURTIS who sailed one of the Nahant dories in the recent races off Cohasset, with women and girls as contestants. She handles the tiller with easy familiarity, as well she may, considering her childhood training during Nahant Summers.

NAHANT'S YOUNG SET in evidence at the dinner-dance will include Messrs. James O. Bangs, John Howard Fay and Warren Motley. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Motley also will have guests.

ANOTHER SATURDAY affair but with slant philanthropic, is Arthur S. Johnson's luncheon, for some hundred and fifty guests. Gathered about the board there will be many Y. M. C. A. representatives, as Colonel Johnson gives the luncheon to and for members of that worthy organization.

YESTERDAY THERE WERE two large luncheons at the club, those of purely social flavor, however. Mrs. Vittorio Orlandini was a hostess, also Mrs. Frederick Winslow, the latter entertaining sixteen guests.

MR. AND MRS. H. WENDELL ENDICOTT, lingering on at Hot Springs, Va., for a portion of their honeymoon, are enjoying to the utmost what the famous resort offers in the way of outdoor sports. Noted golfer that she is, Mrs. Endicott (Priscilla Maxwell) spends much time on the links. Before coming North the Endicotts go to Florida to live on Mr. Endicott's houseboat.

BOSTON'S NOTED BACHELOR, Grafton Dulany Cushing, socially distinguished and famed for his hospitality both on Beacon Hill and at Newport, continues to entertain jolly house parties at "The Ledges," out on the Ocean Drive. William B. Merrill and Eliot Bicknell have recently been domiciled at the Cushing place.

NEWPORT HEARS with much anticipation that Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames may occupy the handsome Ames villa there next season. Mrs. Ames, after a Summer in Europe with her sub-debutante daughter, Miss Mary Ames, follows her usual custom of putting in the autumn at North Easton, stronghold of various branches of the Ames family.

MR. AND MRS. HORACE BINNEY of Commonwealth avenue, week-enders in Newport, went down to look over the estate in Leroy Avenue, part of the Charles F. Lyman holdings they purchased some two years ago. The Binneys are not Newporters by Summer, however, usually preferring to travel abroad with their son.

ARMED POLICE GUARD IRISH ENVOYS HERE

Prevent Repetition of Attack on Mulcahy When Three More Reach New York

New York, Sept. 25.—Ready to prevent any repetition of the attack on General Richard Mulcahy last week one hundred armed polimemen and a dozen detectives met the liner President Harding when it docked at Hoboken today and before a large crowd, waiting at the dock, were aware of the move, had wisked three high officials of the Irish Free State away to New York.

The three, who came here to attend the inter-parliamentary Union conference in Washington are Patrick McGilligan, minister of Industry and Commerce of the Irish Free State, the Hon. Gordon-Campbell, Secretary of the Department of Industry and Commerce and the Hon. Smith-Gordon, president of the Land National Bank of Ireland, who handles the funds of the Free State. McGilligan is a delegate to the Washington conference.

KU KLUX KLAN KLAVERN DISCOVERED IN GREECE

Constantinople, Sept. 25 (I.N.CS.).—The Ku Klux Klan has invaded the Near East. According to dispatches from Salonika, a business man there received threatening letters signed with the name of the American masked order. Police who investigated reported the discovery of a well organized and growing secret society using the name. Its aims were uncertain the officers said.

IDLE PHONES AN EXPENSE TO SUBSCRIBERS

Seventeen per cent. of the phones controlled by the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company are continually disconnected, according to Alfred Putnam Goodell, efficiency engineer and graphic studies expert, whose third article for Boston Evening American readers appears below.

Upon this basis, he says the company had 176,910 out that were non-producing during the year 1924. He asks that the company show its figures on this loss, insisting that this great leak can and MUST be wiped out. Why should subscribers pay for such a loss?

As the readers of this newspaper peruse Mr. Goodell's third article they will understand some of the reasons why the telephone trust's local subsidiary revised its figures, asking for nearly $9,000,000 a year additional from subscribers in Massachusetts, instead of about one-tenth of that sum. This revision, of course, came when the New York officials of the telephone octopus gave the local officials their orders.

It's enough to make a horse laugh for officials of the New England company to tell the world their company is an INDEPENDENT organization, while the American Telephone & Telegraph Company owns 58 per cent. of the stock and dictates policies from New York City.

Mr. Goodell's third article follows:

By ALFRED PUTNAM GOODELL.

The large per cent (practically 70) of phone growth (equivalent) in 1924 disconnected in the same year undoubtedly put the company behind.

The gross operating expenses in 1924 over 1923 were $3,762,816, and the gross operating income in 1924 over 1923 was $3,375,587, showing a loss in 1924 over 1923 of $387,229.

But the company increased its capital $16,549,200 and its funded debt (to be funded, not paid off from earnings) $11,970,200 or in all, $[illegible]8,519,400 and still did LESS business than in 1923.

It never will be corrected until the company gets down to "brass tacks," the same as all the other great corporations do, and base its financing around the nucleus of the earning record (call record) of the individual phone as the gauge of its charge to the user.

GAUGE OF CHARGE

This can be fairly apportioned only on a continuous service basis. Of course, whether telephones under this system be grouped by population units or distances from a central station, would have to be worked out on a relative charge cost to install phones at various points and in various communities according to the demands of the citizens for telephones in homes, offices and factories.

Many installations, fully capitalized in plant cost, etc., are practically on a monthly convenience basis where there is no real demand for same and a monthly service charge is practically all the company receives. I refer to phones in hotel rooms, extension phones, etc.

BIG FALLING OFF.

It would be interesting to learn just how the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company explains its increase in phone income in exchange business for 1924 over 1923 of $2,451,676, and a decrease of 16,523,136 in exchange calls.

The number of exchange calls PER PHONE fell off 135 for 1924 and yet the gross income per phone remained the same as in 1923, while the capital and debt per phone increased $18.00 over 1923.

No matter how high rates are raised the constant increase in this proportion of capital and debt per phone cannot continue unless the number of calls and income can be kept up in proportion. This is impossible to do as the company's business is being conducted at present.

The calls per new phone added are of course way below the yearly average, because phones are being put on at all times.

It would be interesting to know how many of these new installations represent old installations reconnected, and how many are always idle. I figure that 17 per cent of all phones are continually disconnected, making 176,910 telephones non-producing during the year 1924. Let the company show its figures on this loss. Same can and SHOULD be wiped out.

(Another interesting article by Mr. Goodell will appear in tomorrow's edition of the Boston Evening American.)

FIND 55 STOLEN DRESSES NEAR REVERE CYCLE TRACK

Fifty-five dresses and coats valued at $2,000 were recovered by Special Officers Cronin, Church and Hartigan of the Revere police today. They were part of the lot stolen Wednesday night from the store of Hattie Zimble, No. 160 Sh[illegible] avenue, and were found in the rear of the Revere Cycle Track. Miss Stella Prince of the Hotel Daly saw four young men loading a car with dresses. She took the number of the machine and notified the police. The owner of the machine was questioned but not held.

GIRL SHOT, LOCKED UP TILL SHE DIES; 5 SOUGHT

Asbury Park, N. J., Sept. 25 (I.N.S.)—Five men were being sought today as police were checking up on the brutal murder of Miss Marie Nicholini, shot in a restaurant by a man who then nailed up the door so the girl might not crawl to the street. Police believe she was the victim of a jealous suitor or a bootlegging gang.

Had A Wife He Didn't Want And Gave Her Away

Mansfield, Eng., Sept. 25. (A.P.)—Tired of his wife's cooking and dissatisfied with her conduct generally, Walter Knowles, a clerk of Kirby, beat her every night for a week and then gave her to their boarder as a present. He admitted as much to the judge when called into court on a charge of non-support, preferred by Mrs. Knowles.

The wife presented in evidence a note written by her husband reading: "This certifies that I, Walter Knowles, have turned my wife over to Andy Bayliss, lodger."

She was granted a maintenance order of twenty-five shillings weekly.

FIRE EXPLODES 100 GAS TANKS

New York, Sept. 25 (I.N.S.)—Punctuated by a series of one hundred explosions as flames reached a corresponding number of gasoline tanks, an early morning fire today destroyed the Madison Avenue bridge garage.

At Madison avenue and 136th street, one hundred families in adjoining apartments were routed to the streets.

One hundred private cars, taxicabs and motor trucks were destroyed or damaged by the flames. The garage was a total loss.

Garage employes made frantic efforts to drive the cars into the street but were cut off from one section of the garage by the mounting flames.

A [illegible] saved from [illegible]

And, [illegible] a tale of what King Solomon, in the stately language of the Book of Wisdom, called "The Way of a Man With a Maid."

That, and something more, is "Pimpernel and Rosemary," the new novel which starts Monday in the Boston Evening American and runs daily until the last heart-throb has been exacted and the last thrill produced.

It is by the Baroness Orczy, whose patent of nobility was conferred by the venerable Franz Josef.

And the central figure is a spy known as "Number Ten." He is the model of all the great [illegible] since time began, and men risked their lives [illegible] for a flag.

The story [illegible] in [illegible] Europe, a crazy quilt of armed camps [illegible] others [illegible] and [illegible] peopled with new races [illegible] the waves [illegible].

And it continues its glamorous way through the Europe of After-the-Peace, with the diplomats of the green table replacing the captains of the red field.

Written by a woman to whom romance and intrigue and [illegible] are the breath of the nostrils, it starts off with a rattle of machine guns, and ends in hurricane fire.

Through it runs the roar of cannon and the wail of violins. Read the first instalment appearing Monday.

And you will read it through to the end.

Code Signal System Used by the Bootleg Ring in New York

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—A big bootleg ring, smashed by raids here, took orders for 4,800 cases of Scotch whiskey, worth $240,000, in a single day, deposited as much as $200,000 in one bank a month, and received at least one letter of credit for $50,000, it is revealed by Federal Attorney Buckner.

Cable and signal codes, maps charting the routes used by rum ships, bills for huge quantities of liquor labels and evidence that members of the ring have brokerage accounts running into substantial figures were found by the raiders.

Thirteen men regarded as members of the ring were arrested by Federal agents and police in two raids on offices of a pseudo real estate firm. Fourteen others are being sought.

The code used in cable messages and to signal rum ships from shore contained such designations as WYAXY for champagne, WUYOS Scotch whiskey, WUYIR, gin.

HERE'S THE CODE.

The rum ring's code as given out by Mr. Buckner follows:

WUVNE—American whiskey.
WUVSY—Full thirty-two, two ounce American quart.
WUVUR—Alcohol, American.
WUYGD—Atherton.
WUYIR—Gin.
WUYLJ—Irrevocable letter of credit.
WUYOS—Scotch whiskey.
WUZER—Cedarbrook.
WUZTO—Everything very satisfactory.
WYAXY—Champagne.
WYDHO—Peter Dawson.
WYDIG—Oone-half cargo unloaded.
WYFFA—Western rye American.
WYFOJ—Eastern rye American.
WYGAG—American Bourbon.
WYGGA—Champ in P.
WYIKE—Aquitania.
WYKEL—Berengaria.
WYKLE—Mauretania.
WYKNO—Majestic.
WYKUP—Olympic.
WLLA—Glasco.
ZYPKE—Sandy MacDonald.
ZYPPY—King William, V. O. P.
ZYPYP—Munroe's House of Lords.
ZYREM—Claymore.
ZYRLA—Old Parr.
ZYRME—Old Highland.
ZYRPO—Long John.
ZYRYR—Pinee's Liqueur.
ZYSAM—Prevailing Scotch outside, per case.
ZYSNE—Champagne's last lot sold per case.

POLICE SAVE MATADOR FROM SPANISH MOB

Barcelona, Sept. 25.—The bull is not the only menace the bull fighter must face. Marcial Lalanda, matador of the Barcelona Arena, today nursed wounds suffered when an angry crowd, dissatisfied with what they thought was his poor showing in the ring, caught him outside and beat him. But for the interference of police Lalanda might have been killed. A girl reporter was seriously bruised when trampled in the mob.

SAYS HOLLYWOOD INN DIDN'T PAY

The Hollywood Inn in South Sudbury—a but not THE—wayside inn is in financial difficulties. An involuntary petition in bankruptcy against the inn was filed today by John E. Miller, who presented a claim for $1,100 for personal services.

SPEED DEMONS DRAW 40,000 TO EXPO

Attendance Record Broken at Springfield; Poultry Show Wins National O. K.

Springfield, Sept. 25.—Automobile races on the half mile oval drew a [illegible] to the Eastern States Exposition today, "Hampden Day," as an [illegible] to farmers and others from every town and village in the [illegible].

The motor car speed tests, in which several "demon" drivers [illegible] made their appearance, will again be the feature tomorrow, the horse races having been [illegible].

40,000 THERE DAILY.

The throng today pushed the attendance mark above 200,000, more than [illegible] having attended before today. The average daily attendance is approximately 40,000 for six days.

The second day of the dog show also attracted crowds today and the horse show proved a popular feature. Judging of the dogs will be continued tomorrow. Evening programs continue to call for fireworks, band concerts, vaudeville and other attractions.

POULTRY SHOW OK'D.

The Eastern States Poultry Show was officially endorsed by the American Poultry Association and thus becomes one of the big national shows along with those in New York, Boston and Chicago.

The endorsement was made at the exposition grounds at a meeting of the first district of the American association upon the motion of Professor W. F. Kirkpatrick of the Connecticut Agricultural College, and plans were discussed to make next year's show here a banner feature of the exposition.

Enlargement of the automobile parking space in the grounds was made as a result of the demands of motorists who have quickly filled every available foot of ground allotted for parking cars.

REBUILDING THE SYNAGOGUE WHERE THE SAVIOUR PREACHED! The ruined temple where Jesus drove the devil out of the "man possessed" to be reconstructed exactly as it was in His time. Reported, with many authentic pictures, in a wonderfully interesting page of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Royalty Gets Job; British Nobles To Turn Laborers

London, Sept. 25.—Britain's dukes and lords are preparing to work with their hands to meet a threatened national crisis.

A volunteer organization aimed to supply the necessities of life in the event of a coal strike followed by other strikes has been organized by some of Great Britain's leading men and it is reported that Lord Harding of Penhurst and Lord Jellicoe, of Jutland fame, are at the head of the organization.

Many society folk have joined the organization.

If a general strike comes they will man the railroad trains and haul coal and perform all sorts of menial tasks, in order the nation may not be paralyzed.

NEW MOVE FOR TAXI STRIKE SETTLEMENT

State Conciliator Knight to Open Second of Peace Negotiations Today

Another effort to settle the strike of the six hundred Checker Cab Company drivers will be made today by Fred M. Knight, special agent of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, whose previous efforts to bring the parties together proved futile.

It took two and one-half hours to pay off the six hundred men at the company's office at St. Botolph and Irvington streets in the presence of a large detail of police from the Back Bay station. The men were admitted to the pay office in groups of fifteen.

Strikers who reported to officers of the Taxi Drivers Union, local [illegible], after receiving their pay, said [illegible] officers of the [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible].

Investigating a report that strike [illegible] were gathering at Worcester, a large party of strikers toured [illegible] running down any clue to the truth of the rumor.

Toeing the Mark

ALL Regal shoes must "Toe the Mark" in Style, Workmanship, Finish and Fit.

When you stand up in a pair of Regal shoes you have the satisfaction of knowing that the whole Regal Shoe Company stands behind you—because we make the shoes.

And we are a little more particular about the fit than anyone else in the shoe business.

Every Regal salesman is instructed to measure BOTH feet at the same time, while you are standing up on the RESCO Fitting Machine.

And if you will take the size he recommends we will guarantee the COMFORT, as well as the Style, Workmanship, Finish and Fit, and there isn't any more.

THE SCIENTIFIC WAY
When you stand up in this new RESCO Twin-Foot Fitting Machine it automatically and accurately measures the length and width of BOTH feet at the same time.

THE "HOODED MAN" MYSTERY. Continuing his enthralling account of "Men and Women I Have Executed," John Ellis, for nearly 25 years the official executioner of Great Britain, tells about the murderer who concealed his identity under the name of "John Williams." In next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

DOLLARS DAILY; BRING 'EM IN,

Dollar Dan is thinking of changing that "Diller a Dollar" thing or whatever it is, to "a dallying Dollar," he let it be known today, and this crisis is brought about because some of the lucky bills have been lost, strayed—and so forth.

Eagle eyes are hunting out most of the lucky numbers, but every day as the time limit on certain lists elapses, a few of the bills turn up missing.

How come?

Dollar Dan likes to worry about things like that. Maybe he'll worry so much that he'll get a dollar bill complexion.

The merry chase continues, however, with most of the bills being hunted out by the dollar searchers.

It's a tough job getting the magic greenbacks started into circulation and have them split up evenly all over New England, but that's what is being done.

A Love Bird Engagement Ring!

Love Birds are the symbol of Romance and Constancy. On an engagement ring they are the supreme emblem of happiness.

This ring with its love motif is richly carved from pure 18Kt. solid white gold. The diamond is one of flashing brilliance and perfect color. It is of large size and displays to perfect advantage.

The price of this ring is unusually low—$100. This means that you can buy it at $2.00 a week.

A Taste of Honey

A Story that Bares the Soul of a Woman, Twice Cheated Out of a Love She Is Forced to Steal

Jerrold finds courage to tell Elspeth he loves Gerda—then the surprise. "I know that," says Elspeth, "but you love me, too. I'm not a schoolgirl. I'll come to you—tonight—if you wish."

JERROLD FREYNE, a promising young author who has written a book dealing coldly and calmly with love and marriage, is appointed to a clerkship in the Foreign Legation. ELSPETH VOICEY, a cold-sweet daughter of aristocracy, is his promised bride. While wedding plans are under discussion, Jerrold meets GERDA MASKLYN, wife of his friend. He is stricken by her strange beauty and by her bewitching appeal of person. Immediately he is given a new interpretation of love, vastly different from that he put into his book. The situation is rapidly getting beyond his control, and he finds his cultured philosophy being pushed aside by a feeling blissfully new to him.

CHAPTER 24

THE afternoon passed quickly, as it was today that the diplomatic bag had to be sent off to London. The Commercial Secretary came in with bulky envelopes containing the long typewritten screeds wherewith he had to satisfy the curiosity of all those merchants at home who imagined they were being swindled by customers in Varvasch, and who looked upon the Legation as a General Information Bureau set up for their own special convenience. Letters had to be signed by Sir Charles.

Parcels there were, too, to go in the bag, a tennis racket which Garfield was sending to be repaired at Lilywhite's, cunningly concealed in brown paper and cardboard to appear as nothing more contraband than a flat square package, some dress materials forwarded by Kathleen Ravensholme to a friend, all sorts and kinds of things which would travel more safely to London under the seal of the Kingdom of Great Britain.

The bag was finally completed and borne away by Jimmy to be put aboard the Simplon-Orient express which left Varvasch at half past three.

"Oh, that I was going with it," sighed Garfield, "that I might see once again the roses round the door which, in the words of the old ballad, my dear Jerrold, make me love my mother more."

That was that, and Jerrold went out to meet Elspeth.

She was waiting for him, dressed in gray, with the brilliant brown and orange scarf about her shoulders. A wide straw hat with an orange ribbon vividly about it shaded her eyes.

"What about tea?" he asked.

She linked an arm in his. "Don't let's have tea unless you want it. Mrs. Elderson's been to call, and I had to have a cup with her and Aunt Vere."

"Right-o," he acquiesced, "then where can we go that's quiet?"

"Do you know the old convent, Jerry, just beyond the Tibor Bridge, to the left? I should think that was the quietest place in the world. You're allowed to walk about the garden in the Summer. We might go down there if it's not too far."

He nodded. They turned into the Szeparystrasse, and walked without speaking towards the river. The Convent of our Lady of Sorrows was situated in an almost deserted street running obliquely from the Old Embankment. The wide gates of it were open, giving view of a garden paved in flagstones, bright with occasional patches of flowers, a well of sunlight between high walls. They walked through the gates. To the right was the Convent itself, a tall, grey, stone building with shuttered windows and cloisters where nuns in white wandered, two by two, fingering their rosaries or deep in low-voiced conversation which came to Elspeth and Jerrold like the far-away drone of bees.

They chose a stone seat in the shadow of the wall over which a clematis vine poured a torrent of starry purple.

"Well, what is it?" she asked quietly.

"I'm going to be absolutely straight with you, my dear," he began, staring at the point of his shoe tracing hieroglyphics in the the dust. "I want to tell you that I'm in love with Mrs. Masklyn."

If he expected her to be surprised at that, she nevertheless showed no sign of it. "I know that, Jerrold."

"I suppose I've shown it pretty plainly, Elspeth?"

"When I met you two that morning in the Park, I knew you were

DIVORCE OF SALM SCOUTED

Count Says He Will Never Consent to Giving Up His Bride, Millicent Rogers

By C. F. BERTELLI,
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Paris, Sept. 25.—Rumors of an approaching divorce between Count Salm and the former Millicent Rogers, which recently circulated in New York and Paris, should not be credited.

So says the Count himself, adding that he will never consent to a divorce, nor will he give Millicent sufficient grounds for a successful suit.

Count Salm's friends assert he still hopes Millicent will soon tire of the separation and join him in Paris, despite her father's apparently unchangeable opposition.

LOSES POPULARITY.

The Count, who spent the Summer playing tennis at various resorts, is not gaining popularity here. While last year he provoked tennis fans to [illegible] on his displaying an imperial [illegible] on his sweater, he recently met further criticism when, in a moment of anger, he hit a caddy with a racquet during a game.

Indignant spectators booed and hissed, and the Count deplored his hasty action. He is now at Bairritz.

VALENTINOS HAPPY.

Mrs. Hudnut of New York, who is here, has announced that her daughter and her husband, Rudolph Valentino, are on the best of terms. But she declined to state whether the approaching visit to France of the screen star is intended as a definite ending of the marriage [illegible] for the purpose of establishing a residence which the French law requires of both parties desiring to come under the jurisdiction of the French courts.

At the same time there is a report from Nice that an attorney is studying the case which may be decided by the Nice divorce court early in January.

"RED" MURPHY, RUM RING ACCUSER, GUILTY

Daniel J. Murphy of Chelsea, better known as "Red" Murphy in that district, was found guilty in Federal District Court by a jury, having been charged with selling two cases of liquor to a prohibition agent. He will come up for sentence by Judge James M. Morton, Jr., Monday.

When first arraigned Murphy created a scene in the court occupied by United States Commissioner Jenney when he alleged that he had been framed by leading politicians of Chelsea and accused several police and office holders in his general attack on what he called the "rum ring."

Murphy was expected to make startling revelations to the Grand Jury, but is said to have changed his mind.

ST. THERESA SERVICES TO BE HELD SEPT. 28-30

The twenty-eighth anniversary of the death of Saint Theresa, the Carmelite nun popularly known as The Little Flower of Jesus, will be observed by a triduum in St. Stephen's Church, Hanover street, North End. The special devotions, consisting of the rosary, hymn and litany of The Little Flower, sermon and benediction, will begin Monday, September 28, and end on the anniversary, September 30.

BULLETS ROB FOUR OF PROVIDER

Orozio Fischer, East Boston real estate and insurance agent, killed in a Porter street store, is survived by his wife, Florence, and three children, Anna, Katherine and Salvi. Guido Genardo, of No. 142 Porter street, East Boston, is fighting for his life. He also was shot down when a futile demand for payment on account for some painting is alleged to have been made of Fischer by Attilo Manlo, of No. 85 Everett street, East Boston, and an unidentified companion, both of whom are sought by the police.

FLORIDA YOUTH HERE ON HIKE TO PACIFIC

Thomas Fox, Eighteen-Year-Old Draughtsman, Tramping to San Francisco

Thomas Fox, eighteen years old, of Jacksonville, Fla., who is hiking to San Francisco, stopped in Boston today to rest. Thomas left his home August 30, well equipped with clothes, but with only $1 in money.

He is an architectural draughtsman and carries the tools of his profession with him, in addition to a haversack of spare clothes.

The hiker leaves Boston for Providence, then goes to New York, afterwards by the Lincoln Highway to California.

FIREWORKS ABSENT AS CIVIC COMMITTEE MEETS

Lowell, Sept. 25.—The usual fireworks was missing from the meeting of the civic committee last night. Virtually the only business transacted was to accept the resignation of Albert D. Milliken and appoint Edward B. Foster in his place. The next meeting will be held Monday night, when a report on the charities department investigation probably will be made.

MYSTERY BLAST ROCKS LOS ANGELES HOUSES

Los Angeles, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—A mysterious explosion of such violence that it knocked occupants of nearby houses off their feet and broke windows and electric light globes for blocks around, demolished a two-story residence and store building in the northeast part of the city. Early reports that several persons had been killed in the blast were not confirmed by a search of the ruins.

TRAIN GOING TO CONVENTION IS RAIDED

Drys Find Liquor in Grips on Spanish War Veterans' Cars

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Federal prohibition agents and police raided a special train carrying several hundred members of the Spanish-American War Veterans Association, enroute to the convention at St. Petersburg, Fla., when the train lay over in Cincinnati.

Police Lieutenant Samuel Smith and Patrick O'H[illegible], city fireman, both of Detroit, and Deputy Sheriff William Albrecht of Wayne County, Michigan, were arrested on liquor charges when they admitted ownership of grips in which liquor was found.

Spanish War Vets and Women Off to Florida

One hundred and fifty Spanish War veterans of New England and their wives and families left on a special train today for Florida to attend the twenty-seventh national encampment at St. Petersburg, September 27 to October 4.

In charge of the party were Charles A. Flanagan, department commander of Massachusetts, and Walter R. Tarbett, senior vice department commander.

Captain Timothy Sullivan of Manchester, N. H., who was married Wednesday is taking his bride to Florida for a honeymoon. The Sullivans will go to Cuba before returning.

Others in the party include General Stopford, mayor of Beverly, Adjutant Joseph Thalen, Assistant Adjutant Thomas McEvoy, Frank J. Nagle, Wilfred Harris, Edward Hudson, William Cushman, Frank Richards, George Kenney and John Orr, all of Boston.

HARVARD TO HAVE PICK OF AMY LOWELL'S BOOKS

In her will, Miss Amy Lowell bequeathed to the Harvard University Library any books which the library might choose to select from her large collection. As an experimenter in advanced forms of verse, Miss Lowell's library was naturally rich in volumes about poetry and especially in books about modern innovations.

But one of the prizes of her collection was one of the last that might have been expected to be there—a complete collection of the Rollo books, which Miss Lowell had been given in her childhood. Single volumes of the Rollo series are not rare, but complete sets are extremely valuable.

CARDINAL ASKS FOR CHARITIES COLLECTION

Aid for Needy Will Be Sought on Oct. 4; Special Prayers for Whole Month

The annual collection for the Diocesan Charities will be taken up at all masses on Oct. 4, according to the letter sent out by His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell.

The letter reads in part: "Each year an appeal is made to the faithful in behalf of the institutions of the Diocese which are carrying on the work of Christian charity.

"Constantly the homeless, the sick, the aged, and the needy are appealing for assistance, and the actual accomplishments of these great agencies of relief cannot be adequately measured. They have no endowments with which they can meet the heavy demands made upon them and their success depends in great part on the whole-hearted co-operation of the faithful.

"We know that the good people of the Diocese, realizing their obligation in this matter, will, by their unstinted generosity, lessen the tremendous burden that confronts us.

"Our divine Lord, whose life upon earth was conspicuous for charity, will not fail to reward abundantly those of you who contribute in accordance with your means to the upkeep of our institutions, the aim and purpose of which are to help those upon whom misfortune has come.

"'Amen I say to you, as long as you did it to one of these my least brethren, you did it to me.'"

His Eminence also announced that following the order of the Holy See, the Rosary, the Litany of the Blessed Virgin and the Special Prayer to St. Joseph will be said in all churches of the Diocese every day from Oct. 1 to Nov. 2, during the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass or during the Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament.

From Rome comes word that Pope Pius believes the time has now come to bring those separated from the Catholic Church back to the faith once more, and the pontiff has commissioned the Monks of the West to carry on this work. Pope Pius believes there is a particularly fertile field in Russia.

Friday, Oct. 2 is the feast of the Holy Guardian Angels.

The Cenacle Choir, organized to assist the community on various feast days, will resume its meetings and rehearsals, the first to be held Oct. 1, at the Cenacle Convent, No. 196 Lake street, Brighton.

From London comes word of the death of Thomas Anthony Egan immediately after his pilgrimage to Rome in the company of 756 boy pilgrims of the British Empire.

Pilgrims to Rome during the Holy Year of Jubilee are loud in their praise of the Vatican missionary exhibit, which they say is the finest of the kind ever attempted.

The night school at Boston College High School, under the patronage of His Eminence the Cardinal, has grown so in point of student enrollment that it is now the largest school of its kind in the country.

Catholics will celebrate the feast of St. Remigius on October 1. Remigius was the first archbishop of Rheims and converted Clovis, King of the Franks, to Christianity.

The building of a mission on the shore of Great Slave Lake in the Canadian Northwest has made an intense appeal to the Pope, and the Holy Father has contributed $25,000 to the cause. The money was sent to Father Nicholas Lapierre, missionary, who has worked for years among the Indians.

• • •

Thousands of pilgrims to Rome from every country in the world have made the Holy Year a wonderful success, both as a manifestation of faith and as an example of the devotion and loyalty of those of Catholic faith.

HALF OF BAY STATE FOLK HAVE COAL

Nearly half of the hard coal consumers in this State already have their bins filled, according to statistics reported last night by Chairman Eugene C. Hultman of the special State Commission on the Necessaries of Life.

Exactly 2,348,175 tons of anthracite have been delivered to customers throughout the State and there were still 967,040 tons in the yards of the Bay State dealers on September 1. This total was chalked up in five months, starting April 1.

During the previous 12 months or fiscal coal year, 5,115,717 tons of anthracite were delivered to consumers in Massachusetts. Of this coal mountain 2,053,830 went to customers in the Metropolitan district. Already this year 956,025 tons of hard coal have been placed in the bins of residents in Greater Boston.

Appeals Auto Case

Mrs. Harlan A. McPhetres, wife of Lynn Mayor, fined $25 on charge of operating auto dangerously, appeals to Superior Court.

LYNN MAYOR'S WIFE APPEALS $25 FINE

Barnstable, Sept. 25.—Mrs. Harlan A. McPhetres, wife of the mayor of Lynn, will face superior court here on the charge of operating an automobile in such a manner as to endanger the lives of the public.

In lower court she was fined $25 on the charge by Judge Swift, and she appealed.

HUB FISHERMAN WINS FROM SHARKS

Kevin Cleary Rights Dory During 14-Hour Battle With Man-Eaters

Man-eating sharks were cheated of at least three of their regular meals when they picked on Kevin Cleary, Boston fisherman, as their tid bit, for they fought futilely to get at the man, adrift in a small boat, for more than 14 hours.

Cleary, a member of the crew of the schooner Commonwealth, had been lost in the fog while fishing some distance from the home ship. In a squall that followed the fog his dory was overturned, and for nearly four hours Cleary sat on the bottom, scanning the sea in the faint hope that he might sight the Commonwealth or some other craft.

Then the first of the man-eaters approached him, and by the army of black fins that studded the ocean Cleary knew that a school of the monsters had scented breakfast.

So he adopted the hazardous attempt to right his boat and bail her, and succeeded, though the man-eaters hovered in an ever-narrowing circle about him as he worked.

Finally becoming hungry and desperate the sharks attacked him in his boat, and he was compelled to fight them off for nearly 14 hours, until he was rescued by the Shamrock of fishermen's race fame.

REINHARDT OFFER OF ALIMONY IS SPURNED

Vienna, Sept. 25 (United News)—Max Reinhardt's offer of annual alimony of $20,000 has been spurned by his wife, Elsie, and she has demanded the right to confront him in court to answer charges which she declares were "framed" against her.

Hosiery from The Sale of Underwear and Hosiery

In the sale of Undermuslins and Hosiery two spectacular values. To commemorate our 60th Anniversary the Shepard Hosiery store has been heaped with fine, new hosiery—arranged by sizes, with extra salespeople to aid you, and the hosiery is the best value that can be obtained to sell at these remarkably low prices—hose which would be a value at least one-third more than we have marked it.

Full Fashioned Pure Silk Hose
With lisle garter top and lisle foot—where the heel shows it is of silk with a lisle lining to ensure more wear. This stocking is much more than the regular silk stocking selling at this price. We happen to know that it has been sold specially at 1.65. It is 42 gauge (a close heavy weave), is made of fine silk, reinforced with strong lisle, and we know every pair is free from runs of any sort. Each pair is carefully matched. After choosing the type of stocking we ordered it in a range of the newest Fall shades and offer it at our

GIRL WOOED SIX YEARS BY 'GUN AND KISSES'

Victim of "Poison Pen" Letters Tells of the Courtship by Alleged "Cave-Man"

Ashburnham, Sept. 25—While police and postoffice inspectors tuned their noses to a finer pitch today in an endeavor to search out the writer of scented pink poison pen letters to 20-year-old Ruth Wetherby, little Ruth told to the Boston Evening American her story of six years wooing with a gun and kisses.

Hiding away in the Rendezvous Inn, professedly to be safe from her former suitor, Mitchell Bennett, alleged gun-toting Lothario, Ruth said she knew not the identity of the poison letter writer.

But she took opportunity, nevertheless, to review six years of loving through fear and to issue a warning to mothers of daughters and to daughters of mothers.

Meanwhile, in the pocket of the reporter a number of love letters purporting to have been written by the girl to Bennett during the period when love's young dream was at the fairest, despite the alleged gun.

The girl has brought charges against the gun suitor and on October 3 he will be arraigned in Fitchburg Court in the climax of the broken romance.

Filled with warmth and ardor though her letters were to Bennett, yet little Ruth's characterizations of her past sweetheart today were cold, freezing words that sketched him as a young man whom she had feared for the past six years, or since she was fourteen.

"Let me say to mothers," she told the reporter, "don't let your daughter out of your sight with a boarder in the house or with any other man until you are sure she can look out for herself.

WARNING TO ALL GIRLS.

"To girls between fourteen and twenty years old I would warn against going out with a man older and more experienced in life. Let me warn, too, against keeping your fathers and mothers in the dark on what you are doing.

"I kept my mother in the dark. I believed in a man so long that he got to threatening my very life. Today I am paying the penalty of trusting such a man.

"I guess he thought he owned me. He had me under a spell. First he beat me with an umbrella and scared me so much that I did not dare disobey him.

"My mother warned me against keeping company with him so I didn't tell her of our secret meetings.

"One night I came home and he was in the house. We went into the front room and he pulled a gun. He said: 'You're going to do as I say. If you don't, I'll bump you off and then I will kill your mother and father and myself.'

"He asked me to take the gun and said: 'You shoot me and then kill yourself and it will be all over.'

"When he goes to court I shall prove all this—and much more. He has ruined my life."

But when seen at his home, Bennett laughed at the girl's story.

"I don't blame her half as much as I do her mother," he said. "It was her mother who started all this. I know that girl loved me too much to bring me into court.

"I have letters to prove what I say. I have one letter in which she asks me to take her away from here. She had dreams of a home for herself and me. The letter in which she said this is eighteen pages long.

"It is true, however, that a suicide pact was talked of. I can't tell you about that now, but when it comes out in court it will certainly surprise the folks in town."

Arthur [illegible], a Boston attorney, and Professor Sarah Stites, head of the department of economics at Simmons College, represent the public. The employes and employers are represented by six members each.

FOUR PRISONERS ESCAPE JAIL; ONE RECAPTURED

Snow Hill, Md., Sept. 5 (A.P.)—James Baker, twenty-two-year-old confessed slayer of James Carey, aged recluse of Whaleyville, and four other prisoners, escaped from the county jail here. Dennie Pazzella, alleged auto thief, was recaptured suffering with a broken ankle. Unlocking the door of the cage, the men escaped through a small window from which they had removed the grating. Burnie Purnell, alleged bootlegger, well known to the Delaware State police, is one of the four still at large. Baker killed Carey for his money, obtaining $3,000, last July.

2 SHENANDOAH ENGINES DEAD IN STORM

Army Observer in Naval Probe Testimony Says This Helped to Wreck the Dirigible

Lakehurst, N. J., Sept. 25—(A.P.)—Re-examined today before the Naval Court of Inquiry, Colonel C. G. Hall, army observer aboard the Shenandoah on her fatal flight, said his statement of yesterday that the failure of two engines of the ship furnished a possible contributing cause to the disaster was more in the nature of an assumption than a statement of fact.

"Do you know of what time the engines failed?" asked Lieutenant Commander Rosendahl, senior surviving officer of the airship.

"I do not know," was the reply.

"Was it after the [illegible] began showing that we were in the vortex of the storm?" persisted Commander Rosendahl.

"I am not sure," Hall returned. "I thought all engines were going full speed until the ship was wrecked."

PRAISES ENGINES

"What is your opinion as to the reliability of the Shenandoah's engines?"

"I believe there have been no more reliable aviation engines developed than those on the Shenandoah."

In his previous testimony Colonel Hall expressed the opinion that failure of two of the airship's five engines made it [illegible] of the aircraft to escape the vortex of the storm which wrecked her after a spectacular flight of fifteen minutes. One engine went out because of a cracked cylinder and [illegible] because of radiator leakage.

HEARD NO GAS HISSES

Chief Gunner Ray [illegible] estimated it was approximately 4:35 a. m. central time when he passed the ship's galley and saw thermos bottles and canned goods falling into the keel of the ship. This was when the Shenandoah was on the first flight at just before she began the uncontrolled ascent with her bow sticking almost straight up.

[illegible] testimony that no sound of gas cells giving way before the break up of the ship was given [illegible]

Chief Aviation Rigger [illegible] A. Allely declared he observed no sound indicating any rupture of the helium gas cells.

Allely said he actually saw the cars containing engines 4 and 5 break loose in the air. He testified he actually saw the frames of the ship break at the keel. He had heard crashing sounds before that time.

When the ship reached the highest altitude of [illegible] feet the gas bags were under pressure, Allely said. He heard [illegible] of helium gas.

NEW DATE FOR CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE OPENING

Owing to [illegible] reconditioning [illegible] theatre it has been found [illegible] to advance the [illegible] "Abie's Irish Rose" to [illegible] October 5th.

A [illegible] popular comedy starts [illegible] Castle Square [illegible] new dress [illegible]. The advance sale of seats now in progress indicates that Anne Nichols' merry play will [illegible] the same success [illegible] Boston [illegible] has attended [illegible] other cities.

How Fast is Neighborhood Toll Service?

A million telephones — just across the street

*Signal your operator
Give her the number
Hold the line*

If you don't know the number ask your local information operator

We measure speed by the average time of many calls. You measure it by the call of the moment. Except to meet a fair question squarely, we would not talk of speed at all.

If we tell you we have seen single calls go through in well under thirty seconds, it is true. When things go just right over direct wires, to better half-a-minute is not unusual; but it is too much to expect this as an unvarying standard.

If we say the average of thousands of calls is less than ninety seconds, that is true, also. But one call beats the average; the next one goes beyond it. A few calls may not get through at all.

After all, the stop-watch is not the best measure of telephone service.

With reasonable allowance for our complex undertaking, we suggest that you judge Neighborhood Toll Service by its simplicity and sureness rather than by its really remarkable speed.

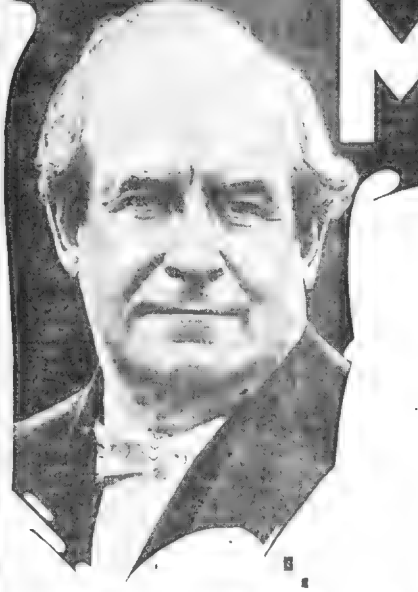
WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN'S MEMOIRS



THE GREAT COMMONER

wrote his autobiography intending to publish it next year. He completed, before his sudden death on July 26 last, the chapters dealing with the outstanding events in his eventful life. His own title for the book was to be

"A Child of Fortune"

He writes of all the great figures in American politics in the past generation with the frankness of the historian but without a tinge of bitterness, prejudice or envy

Bryan's own story tells in separate chapters:

How he first thought of the "Cross of Gold" speech, which made him world famous in an hour. How he practiced the speech upon small audiences in obscure towns, to perfect the speech, for months before he delivered it in the Chicago National Convention that nominated him for President;

How and why he adopted anti-imperialism as the paramount issue of his second campaign for the Presidency;

The effect of his second defeat for the Presidency. How he retired as a candidate four years later, but battled for another progressive platform and candidate in 1904;

How the Wall Street conservatives regained control of the Democratic Party and nominated Alton B. Parker;

How Mr. Bryan made Woodrow Wilson President of the United States in 1912. The incident of Governor Wilson's famous letter, "O, if we could knock Bryan into a cocked hat!" Bryan did not at first mean to nominate Wilson.

He preferred Champ Clark, Speaker of the House, but switched to Wilson. What he wrote to Clark, and what Clark failed to do. Why Champ Clark was defeated in the Convention and Wilson nominated instead.

Bryan's relations with Wilson. How he went into the Cabinet as Secretary of State. Why he resigned.

Bryan's own story is supplemented by important, unpublished private letters, selected by Mrs. Bryan, which reflect new light upon important historic events.

St. Michael's vs. Union.
Clarkson vs. Vermont.
St. Stephen's vs. Bowdoin.
Bates vs. Lowell Textile.
Geneva vs. Washington & Jefferson.
Baylor vs. Notre Dame.

The official opening of the 1925 college football season, tomorrow will give some hundred odd pigskin chasers their initial opportunity to display their wares under "fire," as twenty-one games are scheduled. Football fans all over the land will desert the dinner table in order to watch the first kick-offs. The leather oval will get tossed and kicked about considerably from now until snow flies.

As in past years, most of the first few games are one sided, but it will give the coaches as well as the royal rooters a fairly good idea of the strength of the teams. Even though most teams will rely on nothing but old fashioned football, the scoring punch almost always is available.

A newly-reconstructed Fitton Field, with a seating capacity of 20,000, will be dedicated when Holy Cross moves into action against Manhattan. Cleo O'Donnell has enough backfield material to play a game every day in the week and the line is a staunch one, too.

Several school football stars enrolled at the Worcester institution, but nothing can be expected from them this year. The only difference between school and college football is that in college ranks a football player gets hit about four times as hard. So Mr. O'Donnell is simply getting the youngsters hardened up and ready to fill any vacancies if it becomes necessary.

The Brown Bear dedicates a brand new stadium with little Rhode Island having the honor of being Brown's opponent. Jackson Keefer, "Ruddie" Paylor and Captain Stifler are a trio of dependables on whom Brown is pinning its hopes. Just how much opposition Rhode Island will furnish is hard telling.

Far up in the hills of Hanover, N. H., Dartmouth entertains Norwich, and Jess Hawley has his charges in the pink of condition. The bone-crushing Dartmouth backfield quartet is all primed and the Norwich forward wall must be the greatest in history if the Vermont invaders have any hopes of preventing the Green from crossing its goal line.

Bates plays Lowell Textile; Wesleyan acts as host to the Hamilton University gridsters; Clarkson visits Vermont; Bowdoin faces St. Stephen's; Wesleyan clashes with Connecticut Aggies, and Rochester and Amherst are contests that are sure to be right up to standard.

New England football fandom should easily be satisfied with this galaxy of games to pick from.

Mainstays on Bates Football Team

By BILL GRIMES

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 25.—With the poorest prospects in years, Carl Wiggin is starting his first season as head coach at Bates College. Wiggin was one of the best all-around athletes the Garnet ever had and, regardless of the gloomy outlook, the squad, undergraduates and alumni are behind him to a man.

Although Coach Wiggin has a few good, experienced players left at Bates, the loss of such stars as Guy Rowe, the clever end of the past three years; Charlie Peterson, the tackle; Al Moulton, a good quarterback, and Charlie Woodman, one of the ranking halfbacks in the State of Maine, greatly weakens the outfit.

Captain Paul Folson from Hingham, Mass., is at his old position at end. Folson shows every promise of being one of the best leaders Bates has had in years. He is a fighter, full of spirit, has a fine knowledge of wing play, is fast and a quick thinker. Folson obtained his start in football while a student at Hingham High School and he was selected for the mythical All-South Shore team.

The breaking up of the Woodman Ray combination, which did such valuable work last season, is a great blow to Bates. Woodman and Ray were two real backs. Although Woodman is through at Bates, Charlie Ray is back and the Garnet attack will be built around the colored flash. Woodman and Ray teamed up well last season, but the bulk of the offence will fall on Ray this Fall. Ray is a real athlete who came to Bates from West Chester, Pa. Besides starring on gridiron he was one of the best ball players in the Maine colleges last Spring.

Coach Wiggin has a fine triple threat man in Charlie Ray. His prowess on the gridiron is recognized by other Maine players and he will be watched very closely this Fall. Like many other colored backs, Charlie Ray is exc[illegible] fast and gets [illegible] quick[illegible]. Though Ray does most [illegible]ing, he can receive passes [illegible] best in the State and [illegible] ability to get free and [illegible] for a pass, he is a much feared [illegible].

The return of [illegible] W[illegible], the veteran tackle, [illegible] welcome news to Bates. W[illegible] did not return to college last [illegible] and will complete his [illegible] class of 1926. He played [illegible] Bates in '21, '22 and '23 and his return will partly offset the loss of Peterson.

STAR FROM BANGOR

From the 1925 f[illegible] Coach Wiggin [illegible] the former Bangor High star [illegible] captained the freshmen [illegible] last Fall and his work at tackle stood out very prominently. He is a rangy chap who is [illegible] defensively and offensively. [illegible] is also a fine punter and will do some of the kicking.

David Ray, a brother of the Bates [illegible] is striving for a backfield [illegible] with the freshmen last season and showed [illegible] of varsity calibre. He is [illegible] brother [illegible] but [illegible] and a [illegible] runner. [illegible] the [illegible].

There are ten boys from the Bay State on the Bates squad. White, a Belmont boy, appears to have the call for quarter. He uses good judgment directing his attack, gets his plays off fast and is strong defensively.

Hutchinson, from Lexington, Knox of New Bedford, Fisher, former Walpole star, are trying for the back field, while Jakeman of Wakefield is a promising tackle, as is Foster from Belmont, while Drabble is a candidate for guard and Hudson of Plymouth hopes to be paired with Captain Folsom at end.

The Bates team should be strong defensively [illegible] for the strength [illegible] the forward line. There [illegible] able scarcity of backfield [illegible] for Charlie Ray [illegible] who [illegible].

Coach Wiggin and his assistants, Oliver Cutts and [illegible], have their work cut out [illegible] this Fall. It will be a long [illegible] season battling against [illegible] than they have [illegible] years.

WORLD SERIES? WE HOPE TO BAT FOR 1.000

WHEN it comes to covering the World Series, the Boston Evening American plans to bat for exactly 1.000.

Nick Flatley.

Damon Runyon.

Nick Flatley will write the lead stories, a running description of each game as it is played, in his inimitable style. The play by play story will be by another member of the Boston Evening American Sporting Department. Both stories will come over leased wires, direct from the Pittsburgh and Washington ball parks.

Immediately the game is over, a complete box score edition will be issued. Speed plus accuracy will be the watchwords for this edition.

Damon Runyon, with whose work and ability every sport fan is familiar, will also cover the series. Two of the foremost players in the series, Max Carey of the Pirates and Muddy Ruel, the Senators' catcher, who used to play on the Red Sox, have been signed up.

Other star reporters engaged by the Boston Evening American include Davis J. Walsh, sports editor of the International News Service; E. Barry Faris, Ford C. Frick and Sid Mercer.

BIGGEST PARTY FOR BASEBALL FANS OF N. E.

The Boston Evening American will stage during the playing of the World Series the annual Fall baseball classic, the biggest party for sport fans ever arranged in this country.

When the Pirates, the National League entry, meet the Senators of the American League, guests of the Boston Evening American, seated in grandstand seats in the local ball parks, will see every play reproduced on a giant scoreboard.

This board will be operated by Jim O'Brien, about whose work all the fans know. Direct wires from the World Series parks to the local ball orchard will flash each move as it is made. Announcement will also be made by megaphone.

There will be a band and singers to entertain the crowd before the games begin and in the brief waits between innings.

In every respect the guests of the Boston Evening American at this party will be able to follow the games as closely as if they were in Washington or Pittsburgh watching the actual contests.

The party will be free, the only requisite for admission being that each fan show at the turnstile a copy of the Boston Evening American of the date on which the game is played. No one under 18 will be admitted.

Both President Bob Quinn of the Sox and Vice President Emil Fuchs of the Braves have joined whole heartedly in helping to give this party for the baseball fans. Both are real baseball fans themselves.

The schedule of the dates for the parties and the parks chosen for those dates follow:

Fenway Park—October 7 and 8
Braves Field—October 9 and 10
Fenway Park—October 12
Braves Field—October 1[illegible]
Fenway Park—October [illegible]

Further interesting announcements will be made from time to time in these columns. Watch the sport pages closely for details of the biggest baseball celebration ever given.

ASKS COOLIDGE TO TOSS FIRST SERIES BALL

Washington, Sept. 25.—President Coolidge, who threw out the first ball in the opening game of the World's Series here last year, was invited today by Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, to act in a similar capacity October 8, the first day the Pirates appear here. He took the invitation under consideration.

McGraw Lauds Pirates; Sees Giants Win in 1926

New York, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—Far from being downhearted over the defeat of his club in the National League race for the first time in five years, John McGraw, Gray-haired manager of the New York Giants, regards the triumph of the Pittsburgh club as a "good tonic" for baseball.

McGraw, who has learned to take his baseball philosophically, has nothing but praise for this year's champion Pirates, but predicts the Giants will be back at the top in 1926.

"I confess that the victory of the Pirates should be a good tonic for National League baseball. Barney Dreyfuss, out at certainly knocked at the [illegible] long enough and at last we had [illegible] them in."

SLEUTH ARMY TO GUARD WORLD'S SERIES FANS

Pittsburgh, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—An interchange of detectives to guard the great gatherings of fans who will see the World Series games has been arranged by the Pittsburgh and Washington police forces.

In addition to hundreds of traffic officers and patrolmen who will be on duty at Forbes Field here, Superintendent of Police Edward [illegible] has announced that the entire Pittsburgh detective force [illegible] sleuths from the National Capital will mingle with the crowds at the games.

When the scene shifts to Washington a detail of local detectives will be on hand to help the District of Columbia squad. The detectives will centre their attention on pickpockets.

Washington, Sept. 25.—(A.P.).—The American League pennant flew unchallenged at the Washington masthead today for the second consecutive season.

Clark Griffith's Senators made certain of meeting the Pirates in the World Series by sweeping both ends of a double-header against Cleveland yesterday, 4 to 3, and 6 to 2, while the Athletics were succumbing to the Browns in an eleven inning contest, 5 to 4.

[illegible] games [illegible] Washington can lose all its remaining games and still be the flag. [illegible] Goslin, slugging outfielder of the champions, goes a generous share of the [illegible] for sewing up [illegible] title, after [illegible] a home run in the tenth inning to drive home the winning run. Alex Ferguson easily subdued the Indians in the second game.

Although they have clinched the American League title, the Senators will place their full strength in the field today against St. Louis here and the regulars will continue in the line up during the three-game series.

TOO COLD FOR PIRATES AND GIANTS TO PLAY

Pittsburgh, Sept. 25 (A.P.).—The New York-Pittsburgh game here today was postponed on account of cold weather. Two games will be played tomorrow.

LIVE NEWS OF BIG FOOTBALL ELEVENS

Yale received the pleasantest surprise of the season when Captain Joss reported for practice. He will not be able to play against Middlebury, but is recovering from his illness and should get in against Penn State. If at the latest. Richards was still in his place at tackle, and the sophomore Flaherty had Wortham's guard position filled. The ends were Bradley and Coleman, a new man to be tried out. The first string backfield continues to be Bunnell, Kline, Allen and Cottle.

Princeton's backfields roamed up and down the gridiron practicing the plays to be used in Saturday's games. Bridges maintained his position in the first string outfit, teaming with Dan Caulkins, Ewing and Wenks. The second backfield consisted of [illegible] Chandler, quarter, and Dixon, Prendergast and [illegible]. Harry Metzbahn continued to be a sensation at tackle. The practice was concluded by a scrimmage between the third and fourth teams with Beares the star.

Dartmouth's practice, though light in view of Saturday's game, included a short scrimmage while the coaches kept sharp eyes on their charges. Robinson, owing to his good work during the week, was given a chance on the first team, while Wright, whose improvement has been marked, replaced the veteran Tully at end. Horton, recovered from his injury, was at fullback all the afternoon. Lane, McAvoy and Oberlander were the other backs used.

Pittsburgh has veteran material for every position on the team and is figured as one of the strongest teams in the East this year. Goldberg, a sophomore, will probably play centre. The first game is with W. & L. Saturday.

Holy Cross coaches paid particular attention to the tackles in offensive [illegible]. Jack Phelan of Medford took a [illegible] to the first team pivot position during the latter part of practice afterwards receiving a rough going over from Jack Reilly [illegible] instruction in how and drop kicking. The Medford boy looks good.

Amherst took things easy with a long signal drill and running under punts [illegible] as it was announced [illegible] week still seems to stand [illegible] expected that Wilder will start in [illegible] place at quarterback. Mer[illegible] Purdy and Ladgen will be [illegible] the backfield.

SOX HOPEFULS SHOW SIGNS OF CLASS

Tyrus Cobb and his Tigers say farewell this afternoon and trickle back into the West with the fight for third place still raging wildly. Charlie Ruffing, one of the circuit's best tossers now, halted the dash of the Bengals abruptly, and made the Red Sox look like a ball club, as they do every now and then.

Games like the Thursday shutout convince the observant fans that there is a much better flock of material around than the club owned a year ago and that some of the kids getting used to the big stuff, are very good prospects.

Peter Welsh at short and Mike Herrera at second played a lot of fine baseball, had their heads up all the time. Both young men looked raw breaking in, but are reasons for hope now that the nervousness has gone. Welsh, a chunky chap, hit .340 out in Flint. He connected twice with Dauss's slants, and slapped out liners that showed why his average was so high.

He also displayed a better arm than Rothrock has shown and handled several hard chances [illegible]. His one mistake was stepping over the bag in a hurry to [illegible] a double play. He nipped his man at first, however.

Herrera has been punching out hits regularly, and apparently has mastered the bounds in the infield, which troubled him the first day. He ranges over quite a stretch of territory at second, and has a good [illegible]

I don't wish to give the impression that these suits are marked down. These are special made garments, fresh from the tailors' hands, who have made very generous concessions to keep our help going at this season of the year. The woolens are fine imported Scotch worsteds. They are fabrics that can be worn all year round, and I have made them in all sizes from 34 to 50. I want to impress my Bargain Basement on the public's mind.

In line with the Fur Sales of today I am offering Three Hundred Overcoats, carried over from last season, at a price of $15.00. Sizes up to 50.

Knickerbockers and other Trousers, including the staple grays, as low as........ $3.50

Snap Down Brims With Clever Bands—The Favorite

OUR great assortment of these clever new styles is receiving a great welcome. We put so much class in the blocks and flanges which give the hat the right crown mould and brim tilt—we give so much artistic thought to the proper blend of striped band and hat tone—we give so much time to the real work that makes the finished hat—that when completed it can be only a perfect product.

MONTE AND FRIEDMAN MEET AT ELKS' SHOW

McCARTHY MEETS COOK SATURDAY

Heavyweights Clash at Revere Cycle Track in Main Go

By JACK CONWAY

AMATEUR boxers will rule the ring tonight with bouts in five classes billed for the Elks show at the Boston Arena.

Followers of the professional punch flingers will have to wait until tomorrow afternoon when Pat McCarthy of Roxbury and George Cook, Australian heavyweight, clash in the feature ten-session mill of a show to be staged by the Veterans of Foreign Wars at the Revere Cycle Track.

Jack Conway

There will be more than four hours of torrid battling at the Elks show this evening. George Freeman, chairman of the Elks' athletic committee, announces that sixty boys have entered the show. They are the class of our amateur mitt wielders.

There will be contests at 112, 126, 135 and 147 pounds and in the heavyweight division.

The proceeds of the show will go to swell the charity fund of the Elks. In an effort to stimulate interest in amateur boxing, the committee in charge of tonight's show announces that the prices will be 50 cents, 75 cents and $1. This won't make a hit with the professional promoters.

THERE is unusual interest in the heavyweight class. Babe Wilson, Al Friedman and Joe Monte will be among the carefree youths to battle for the honors. These boys also competed in the initial Elks show. The writer was of the opinion that Monte was very fortunate to be declared the winner in this class. It was our opinion that Wilson defeated Monte in the semifinal and that Friedman had the best of the final. Monte apparently thought otherwise as he hopped at the opportunity to step in and battle Wilson and Friedman again.

GEORGE COOK, Australian heavyweight, was due in town today all set for his ten-round bout with Pat McCarthy of Roxbury, which will top the fistic carnival of the Veteran of Foreign Wars at Revere tomorrow afternoon. Cook wasn't anxious to go through with his meeting with McCarthy, but was compelled to do so by the Boxing Commission on the threat of suspension.

In his last local start, Cook punched holes in Joe Stoessel in a mill at Revere. The Australian is now under the management of Walk Miller and contends he will make even a better showing against McCarthy than he did in his meeting with Stoessel.

Cook is aggressive and a fine infighter. He believes that if he is able to dispose of McCarthy in decisive style that he will have earned the right to meet Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney.

Archie Skinner, Scotch heavyweight, is also in good condition for his tussle with Will Mathews of Baltimore. When these boys battled at the Arena, Mathews won a close decision.

Chick Branch, Southern welterweight, declares he will upset Won Monolan, whom he meets in another bout.

DAVIDSON TO COACH HARVARD BASEBALL

By BILL GRIMES

A [illegible] announcement has been sent out from Cambridge [illegible] Davidson, president of the Boston Twilight League, will be the new Harvard varsity baseball coach.

Davidson has been coaching the freshmen teams at Harvard for three years and his work has been so satisfactory to the Harvard Athletic [illegible] that he was practically the only candidate considered, since the resignation of Eddie Mahan left the varsity berth open.

Davidson is a graduate of Brown [illegible] played third base. He was [illegible] good ones. [illegible] Davidson went to Brown, he attended Dorchester High School and Volkmann School in the Back Bay. It was [illegible] at Volkmann that he began to [illegible] as a ball player. He had no [illegible] making the Brown team and [illegible] fielding and hitting featured [illegible] his four years.

FLATLEY CALLS 'EM

The Mysterious Waiver
Wise Barney Dreyfus
Signal Tipping
Boston Baseball Luck

By NICK FLATLEY

THE ways of baseball are mysterious and strange. Three or four clubs in the big league need third basemen, yet Bobby Jones of the Tigers is placidly waived out to let the Detroit owners make a trade. Bobby at the waiver price would be worth several of the young men who w[illegible] up in the early Spring and go back before Summer arrives.

HE'S a veteran, but not so old that he's slowed up. He can hit and field, and is always in shape. He would seem to be far more valuable than some of the youths the Red Sox have collected. But swapping is part of the magnates' end of the game, and you will notice that the strong clubs don't pay much consideration to the weaker.

WE must hand it to Barney Dreyfuss. His Pirates have won the National League pennant and it's all Barney's doing. Last Winter he let Rabbit Maranville and Charlie Grimm go to the Chicago Cubs. The pair were among the best infielders in the league. But they didn't quite fit in with the Dreyfuss scheme of things. In return Barney collected Grantham, fast, but unsuccessful as a second baseman, and Vic Aldridge, who could never do much pitching with Chicago.

Grantham has been converted into one of the most useful first basemen in the business, while Aldridge is one of the best pitchers in the country. Mister Dreyfuss saw the possibilities of the pair and proceeded, though almost every baseball man in the country thought he was crazy. The little magnate, who has made millions in the game, is crazy — like a farm full of foxes.

THE nearly fatal injury to Fred Haney of the Detroit Tigers has revived lots of chatter about signal tipping. When Fred climbed into Howard Ehmke's fast ball it looked as if he had been assured that a curve was coming up. He was fooled so badly that he couldn't get out from under. Coaches used to catch the signs and give them to the batters quite regularly. The pitchers found that out, and acquired the habit of shaking off the catcher, calling for a new signal. That didn't prevent the clever coaches from getting them. So the chuckers devised signs of their own. The coaches can't watch both pitcher and catcher with any assurance of success. So the practice has been abandoned to a great extent. Too many batters were beaned because of crossed signs. Now and then the boys take a chance, but it's dangerous.

OCCASIONALLY great pitchers have so much stuff that [illegible] don't care if the batters [illegible] what's coming up. [illegible]

THE last wild spurt of the Braves, [illegible] has them just a half [illegible]

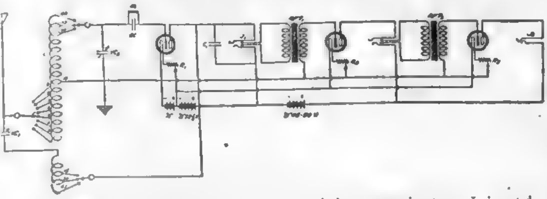
THE REINARTZ HOOKUP



The Reinartz receiver is one of the most efficient of the regenerative type. It is noted not only for its sharp tuning, but its remarkable smoothness of regeneration. Oscilliation is controlled by means of a variable condenser instead of the conventional varicoupler. This method seems to be very popular in the extreme short wave receivers, where very fine regenerative control is necessary. The inventor of the circuit, Mr. John H. Reinartz, is called the "Short Wave Wizard," and is at present with MacMillan in the Arctic.

STOP THAT LAUGHING! But how are they going to stop their laughing, Father, if you persist in bringing home the Boston Sunday Advertiser, with its incomparable 8-Page Color Comic Section? No blue Sundays in any house where "Bringing Up Father," "Polly," "Barney Google and Spark Plug," "Tillie the Toiler," "On Our Block," "The Katzenjammer Kids" and "Mr. Dough and Mr. Dubb" are regular visitors!

LARDNER'S JACK TO ANNOUNCE

Jack Keefe, the only living personification of Ring Lardner's famous character, will make his debut to the radio world, as announcer of Station WSM, the 1,000 watt Western Electric plant at Nashville, Tenn., when that station is formally dedicated on Monday night, October 5.

Jack Keefe has already done many noteworthy things, despite the fact that he is a young man. He is a graduate of Harvard, played on that university's varsity baseball team in 1909, was a featured entertainer of the Glee Club, has held the position of Professor of Science and coach of the athletic teams of the Eastern Oregon State Normal School, has directed Elk minstrel shows over the country; was chief chemist of a large alcohol plant in Tennessee during the war, and graduated in law at Vanderbilt University in 1925.

Now he comes to station WSM and on October 5, he will take his place in the radio firmament as the Announcer-Studio Director of one of the country's finest and largest broadcasting stations.

The new Nashville station will operate on a wave length of 282.8 meters, and its tremendous inaugural program on Monday night, October 5, will begin at 7 o'clock and continue [illegible] or later.

FRESHMAN SETS ARE POPULAR

One of the first radio manufacturers to get a complete line of radio sets into the hands of New England dealers is the Charles Freshman Co., who, through a list of authorized dealers, are showing a line covering a wide price range. Incidentally, this is one of the first concerns to throw into active operation the plan of merchandising through authorized dealers

Probably the most popular set of the line is the improved model of the original Freshman Masterpiece, now known as Model 5 F 2 The circuit of this set remains the same—five tube, tuned radio frequency—but the 1925-26 model sees many niceties which are lacking on earlier models. This particular model may be had in either mahogany or leatherette cabinet.

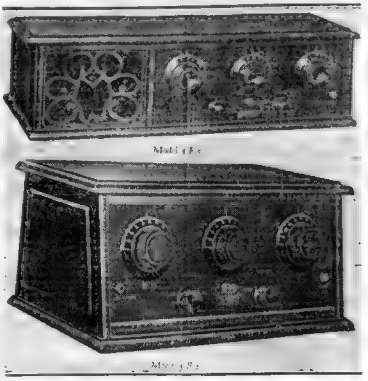
Another model which is attracting considerable comment is the Model 5 F-5 which incorporates a built in loud speaker in one end of the cabinet. Once again, the Masterpiece circuit is used In fact, the complete line of sets this year utilized the Freshman Masterpiece circuit clearly attesting that the popularity of this set last year has convinced the Freshman Co. that this is a circuit well worthy of "pushing" to the limit during the present season

The most elaborate of the new models is the Franklin Console which constitutes one of the real advances of the season toward making radio an attractive feature of home furnishing as well as an amusement provider.

Aside from the sets the Freshman Company is also introducing a new B-battery eliminator, employing a semi rectifier and designed to secure plate voltage direct from the 110-volt alternating current house lighting system.

The manner in which the New England territory has been stocked with the Freshman products, almost "overnight" is considered a remarkable merchandising feat. It is probably not exaggerating to state that the Freshman Company so far this season has secured a far wider distribution than any other radio manufacturer.

EXPECTED TO WIN FAVOR OF FANS



The Freshman Model SF 3 bids to make a tremendous hit with the fans, on account of its built-in loud-speaker feature.

Krazy Kat Gets the Lucky Bill

All you little girls and boys must have noticed that there hasn't been anything in the paper about Krazy Kat for several days

And what do you suppose the reason is? The radio editor didn't know for some time, and he has just found out.

THE KRAZY KAT AND IGNATZ AND THE OFFICER PUP WERE ALL MAD WITH THE RADIO EDITOR BECAUSE OF WHAT THE RADIO EDITOR WROTE ABOUT THE DINNER PARTY. Of course you all remember about that dinner party, and how the radio editor went to the Krazy Kat Kottage to eat some wild duck, and how there wasn't any wild duck to eat, and how they had to have some canned baked beans for dinner. Well, you remember how the radio editor put all about it in the paper?

And Krazy Kat reads the Boston Evening American every evening, and he saw all about the dinner party in the paper and his feelings were very, very hurt. So yesterday when the Krazy Kat and the Officer Pup and Ignatz all came into the radio department of the Boston Evening American and said they wanted to see the radio editor, everybody was very much pleased that they were back again

All three of our little friends were very much dressed up. Ignatz had on a new cap. It was bright green and had a tassel on the top and the Officer Pup had some new shoes that squeaked when he walked Krazy Kat had on a new necktie, and a flower in his buttonhole

"Why, how do you do?" said the radio editor, "All you little boys look very much dressed up [illegible] You must be feeling very prosperous"

"Yes sir," said the Krazy Kat "We do feel prosperous—we feel quite rich in fact, and we have come up here to tell you about it, and to thank the Boston Evening American for it."

"Why," said the radio editor, "how has the Boston Evening American helped you to get rich?"

"I will tell you," said the Krazy Kat. "You know I always read the Boston Evening American every night after supper because I like to read the editorials and get all the news, and Ignatz reads it because he likes the funnies, and the Officer Pup reads it because he likes the sporting news, so we take three copies so we don't have fights about it, and last night we were reading about the Lucky Bills, and what do you suppose?—IGNATZ HAD A LUCKY DOLLAR BILL AND IT WAS WORTH FIFTY DOLLARS! We brought the lucky bill over here to the Boston Evening American and we got fifty great big dollars, and we all went out and got each other presents, and here we are"

"Good luck," said the radio editor "That is one of the nicest things I have ever heard, and I am going to put it right in the paper this minute."

"Thank you, sir," said the Krazy Kat, "and put in our names and all about it, will you?"

"Yes, sir," said the radio editor AND HERE IT IS.

GAMBLING AS MEANS TO SAVE CITY

Vienna, Sept 26.—The old adage that "gambling is a road to ruin" has been once and for all scotched by the authorities of the city of Oedenburg, who, in their application to the Budapest Government for a special license to open a gambling casino "will be the only means of rescuing the city from economic ruin."

The minister concerned has replied "that if other means of saving the city are not available, he will advise the State to put aside moral scruples and grant the gambling license."

RADIO TROUBLE AND CURE

Q. P. A., Watertown.—Will the new [illegible] tube operate without a C battery?

A.—No. You must use a C battery of [illegible] volts for this tube. An ordinary 22½ volt B battery may be used to good advantage. The plate voltage should be kept as close as possible to [illegible] for best results. This may be obtained by connecting three standard 45 volt B batteries in series.

Q. W. A. C., Roxbury.—I have a Browning Drake receiver. Have just put in new tubes and new B batteries Last Winter I used to get stations as far away as Cuba, but now all I can get is local stations and, sometimes, WGY. Can you help me out?

A.—Receiving conditions are not yet good enough to rely on the long distance stations You will have much better luck when the snow gets on the ground.

Q. B. K., Cohasset. I have read in the papers where receiving conditions have been poor lately. I am using a one tube set, and have been hearing the following stations regularly WGN Chicago, WOS Jefferson City, Missouri, PWX Havana, Cuba, WMBF Miami, KSD St. Louis WOC Davenport, and CNRM Montreal. I cannot understand why I get such good results and people in the city with big sets are complaining about poor conditions

A.—The fact that you "get" these stations is due to two major reasons. The first is because you probably sit up later than the average person. The second, and most important, is because you are located at a place where receiving conditions are unquestionably better than around the city limits You must also bear in mind that it is comparatively easy to make a one tube set work at maximum efficiency, whereas with multitube sets there is more room for trouble and faulty adjustments. The day has come when high quality local reception is the aim of radio engineers. Long distance is "passe."

Q. H. V. B., Malden. What is the correct B battery voltage to use on a tuned radio frequency amplifier? Some tell me that 90 volts is necessary, while others say 45 is all that is necessary.

A. Little is gained by increasing the plate voltage in a tuned radio frequency amplifier. In the earlier days it was customary to use 90 volts, but in many of the newer sets 45 volts are being used just as successfully and with greater economy

Q. F. R. B., Pittsfield. I have a Freshman Masterpiece Kit Set. My B batteries burn out in less than a month. I have two diagrams, both different in regards to placement of .006 condenser. One shows it connected between the 90 volt B battery wire, and wire connecting with both rheostats. The other shows it connected between the 90-volt B battery wire and the plus prong on number 2 socket to secondary of R.F. unit Number 3. Which is correct? Would this cause my trouble. I have it connected the latter way. Kindly answer me in the column of the Daily Advertiser

A. It is not likely that your trouble is caused in any way by this bypass condenser. Your poor B battery service is undoubtedly due to the fact that no C battery is being used. You can introduce a C battery in your set by breaking the wire which connects the two low ends of the audio secondaries to the minus A, and inserting the battery with minus terminal nearest the old transformers The plus C goes to the minus A. This arrangement will cut your B battery drain about in half, and give an improved tone in the loudspeaker

Q. R. R., Charlestown Kindly let me know in your Question and Answer column what the reason is that in the 4R radio set the filament leads of one of the tubes are changed, and why. What difference does this make in the reception of signals, etc.?

A. This is done merely to simplify the wiring in the set. The polarity marks on sockets mean absolutely nothing

Salt [illegible]

[illegible] onion and pepper very fine. Melt the butter in a hot frying pan [illegible] and in it cook the onion [illegible] pepper until they are soft [illegible] add meat and potato [illegible] tiny cubes Mix thorough[ly] [illegible] the broth and puree [illegible] and set into the oven un[til] [illegible] about

Another equally delicious recipe in small proportions is for corn au gratin. I'm sure you will want to make use of this before the corn is all gone

Recipe No. 1653

CORN AU GRATIN

2 [illegible] butter
2 [illegible] flour,
[illegible] salt
[illegible] green or red pepper chopped fine or speck of black pepper.
[illegible] milk
1½ [illegible] green corn pulp,
1 [illegible] cracker crumbs,
2 [illegible] melted butter

Make a cream of the butter flour salt pepper and milk Stir in the corn and turn into buttered baking dish Mix the cracker crumbs with the melted butter and spread over the corn mixture. Bake until brown

One little bride asks how to make just one loaf of white bread, as she thinks her Big Boy does miss the "bread that Mother used to make" just a little. Here is how it is done.

Recipe No. 1654

WHITE BREAD (One loaf)

1 cup milk
1 tbsp. shortening
1 tbsp. sugar
½ tsp. salt
[illegible] cake compressed yeast.
With [illegible] cup liquid
About 4 cups white bread flour

Scald the milk. Add the butter salt and sugar to it and let cool to lukewarm temperature. Mix the piece of yeast cake with ¼ cup lukewarm milk or water. [illegible] this to the other liquid ingredients when all are at the proper temperature Then stir in about 4 cups of white flour When all is mixed together and the sides of the bowl are free from dough, turn onto a board lightly dredged with flour; knead until the dough is elastic with little white blisters on the surface then cover closely and let stand until morning in a warm place In the morning the dough should have doubled in bulk. Then cut through and through it and turn it over with a knife, to let out the gas Then cover again and leave until it is doubled in bulk or it may be shaped into a loaf at once. Bake 1 hour increasing the heat after the first 15 minutes and decreasing during the last 15.

SEASICKNESS FAILS AS EXCUSE; PAYS $2,000 FINE

Dover, England, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Seasickness is no excuse for not declaring articles brought across the Channel upon which duty should be paid. The Customs Court of Dover so held in the case of an Englishman coming from Ostend who failed to declare a gold watch a revolver, opera glasses and other things purchased in Belgium Notwithstanding the man's plea of illness the court fined him about $2,000.

FINANCE

—By B. C. FORBES—

In a thousand communities, north, south, east and west, a real estate boom is raging. The last big land boom is almost nationwide, is attaining much greater magnitude, but is most spectacular in and around cities.

We hear so much about the indiscriminate rise in values down in Florida that the extent and strength of the boom in other parts of the country are little understood. In New York city real estate prices are bounding upwards as never before. Picture Manhattan as the hub of a wheel, follow the spokes, and you will find a boom raging at every point—in West Chester, in Long Island, in Staten Island, in Jersey, in Connecticut.

Detroit is growing by leaps and bounds and values are advancing accordingly. In certain parts of Chicago the boom has broken out in all its force. Along the Pacific Coast the same is true.

When I recently visited San Antonio I discovered there a real estate concern of astonishing size, the Conness Realty Company. It takes some 60 people to run it. It embraces a rental department, mortgage loan department, law department, insurance department, city sales department, land department and architect and builders' department. The description given by W. S. Conness of what is going on in that part of the country is not wholly unlike what is developing at many other places.

When Mr. Conness opened an 8x10 real estate office twenty-five years ago, San Antonio had only 53,000 people, only 5 per cent. of the agricultural land in the county (Bexar) was in cultivation, land outside the city was offered at $12 to $18 an acre and was covered with brush.

"Today," said Mr. Conness, "San Antonio has a quarter of a million people, surrounded by a territory as large as the State of Ohio, with natural resources unsurpassed in any other part of the country. Big pastures are being rapidly converted into beautiful farms."

The California boom was based on the creation of enormous new wealth. The outcome of the boom in Florida will be determined not by events in Miami or other cities, not even by the number of tourists the State attracts, but mainly by the extent of the wealth brought from the soil through drainage, road building, railroad building, farming, fruit growing, truck gardening, etc., supplemented by the development of new industries.

BOSTON TRADE IS EXPANDING, SAYS DUN'S

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston:

Current business continues to expand at a normal rate for this season of the year.

Favorable prices at the London wool auctions have stimulated the local market and heavy buying is reported. Worsted mills continue to be the best customers, prices are steady. The yarn market is quiet, except for a few of the medium-priced staple lines; prices are irregular. Receipts of wool this week were considerably below those of last week and slightly less than those for the corresponding week of last year. The woolen market is fairly active.

Buying of finished cotton goods appears to be on the increase, in spite of recent price advances. New Bedford looms are operating at about 100 per cent. Fall River is sharing in the increased demand for the cheaper goods. Cotton yarns are firmer and more orders are being received than for some time.

Cotton mixtures and rayon continue very active.

Favorable reports continue to be received from the shoe trade, and in some cases operatives are expressing a willingness to accept wage cuts.

General building continues at a high level, and lumber and other materials are moving well, with no change in prices. Reflecting better conditions in the textile and shoe trades, chemicals are more active, but prices are a little higher.

Hardware jobbers report sales below those of last year, but demand for paints is good.

Sales of confectionery exceed those of last year, with prospects encouraging for a good Fall business.

DOLLAR ACCEPTANCES FIGURES ARE GIVEN

The total dollar acceptances covering exports and imports for twenty-four leading banks throughout the country reporting to the magazine Export Trade and Finance as for September 17 amount to $266,274,081, as compared with $267,920,941 for August 20 and $208,416,897 for September 18, 1924.

Acceptances in foreign currencies executed by foreign banks for account of twenty-three banks reporting amount to $42,734,151 for September 17, as compared with $42,174,180 for August 20 and $24,246,610 for September 18, 1924.

Safety razor exports for the year ended June 30 totaled 4,673,840, valued at $1,608,322, increase of 3,258,822 in quantity and $863,608 in value over the previous year.

'STATE STREET' EXPANDS TO SOUTHWARD

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Old "State Street" is rather rapidly expanding to the southward. Whereas financial firms of high standing were at one time practically confined to State Street, such firms are now in numerous cases well established off State Street in the general direction of the South Station. The new Chamber of Commerce Building attracted some stock exchange houses from State Street. The next to leave will be Lee, Higginson & Co., America's oldest private banking firm. Many passing along Federal Street stop to read on the old First National Bank Building the placard announcement that "44 State Street" will be deserted for the new quarters January 2.

Popularity of tobacco shares as well as of the weed itself appears to be growing. E. V. Jaeger, formerly of Boston, now producing the much-read daily market letter for Hornblower & Weeks in New York, says "We would pick up American Tobacco during periods of irregularity. Expect at $8 dividend basis and 130 for the stock." The gentleman who writes with a Waldorf Astoria dateline for Publisher C. W. Barron of the Boston News Bureau also says: "An $8 dividend and a price of $130 are expected for American Tobacco." New [illegible] prices followed the announcement. The writer favored purchase of American Tobacco as an investment suitable for many when it was selling earlier this year well under par.

General Manager Dana of the Boston Elevated shows that in the three years ending June 30, 1917, 1918 and 1919 the Boston Elevated Railway's outlay for injuries and damages ran over $900,000 a year. Since 1919 there has been only one year in which the figure exceeded $900,000. Expenditures on account of injuries and damages in relation to gross revenues have also declined materially.

I have been told that, since the "L" came under public control, jurors have been less inclined to take the "soak the railroad" view than formerly.

Title Insurance Policy by Title Guarantee & Trust Co., New York, N.Y.

Dated September 15, 1925. Callable at 102 and accrued interest. Interest payable March 15th and September 15th. Maturities: 2 to 10 years.

Price: 100 and accrued interest to net 6½% for all maturities excepting September 15, 1927, March 15 and September 15, 1928, and March 15, 1929, which are offered at a price to yield 6%.

Security: The bonds will be secured by a closed first mortgage on the land owned in fee fronting over 100 feet on Central Park West by 111 feet on West 101st Street, together with the 16-story housekeeping apartment building to be erected.

Location: This site overlooks Central Park and is in close proximity to subway, elevated, street car and bus transportation. With the proposed widening of this street to 72 feet and the removal of the obsolete car tracks, Central Park West should become a magnificent boulevard comparable with that part of Fifth Avenue facing Central Park on the east.

Building: The building will be of modified Colonial design 16 stories in height of steel frame construction, fireproof throughout, and will contain approximately 112 apartments. This structure will be one of the few improved real modern family housekeeping apartment buildings that have been constructed on Central Park West in many years. Considering the convenient location of this property, the park surroundings and the constant demand for apartments in this section, rapid rental at attractive prices is assured.

A TASTE OF HONEY ❧ By Eric Maschwitz

A Story That Bares the Soul of a Woman Twice Cheated of the Love She Seeks

in love with her.' She, too, was staring at the ground.

"Oh, it's all very well to say 'love' like that, Elspeth," he went on, "but you don't know what love for Gerda means to me. It isn't love as you and I understood it in London, being engaged to be married, going about together for people to say 'What a charming couple, how in love they must be!' Don't you see, I've gone the whole way with her, we belong to each other."

"I understand," she replied. "I'm not a schoolgirl, Jerry. What do you want me to do?"

"Break off our engagement," he said. "Just that. Isn't that the way out, the only thing to do? You don't want to bother any more about a man who's betrayed his engagement to you and gone off with another woman. It won't hurt so very much, will it, Elspeth, because somehow we never got on together, never understood each other?"

"Does that mean that I didn't care, Jerry?"

Pleads His Cause.

He hesitated at the hint of pain in her voice. "No, not that, my dear. You did care—in a way. But admit that your love for me never became an obsession, never made you want to call my name to hold me in your arms."

"And yet I followed you here."

She let fall those six small words so that they dropped like six heavy weights upon his consciousness.

"You followed—me?" Then his tone became lighter. "Oh, yes, just for the holiday, and to see what things were like out here."

"No," she corrected gravely. "I heard that Mrs. Maskiyn had left London to go abroad—and I knew where she was going. Don't you understand me?" she blazed suddenly. "I loved you, Jerrold—how strongly, perhaps, I didn't know—and couldn't sit idly at Watchings while she carried the war into your country. When I realized what her plans were, how determined she was, to what lengths she would go to get you, I was mad with anxiety.

"Then, as though God had answered my prayer, came the visit of Uncle Alan's. I'm afraid mother couldn't understand why I was so mad to go with him, but I won my point—though I think I should have gone without her permission.

"All the way down here on that endless journey I could hardly look at the country through which we were passing. I'd never seen Italy, but the sight of it just didn't seem to matter. I was imagining how she must be here, near you, never ceasing in her attempts to get you for herself."

Knew All the Time.

"Is this true?" he asked dazedly.

"At least do me the honor of believing me," she pursued. "Don't you understand? I knew all the time. I don't know what it was that first roused me, but I believe it was that morning when we walked to Berkeley, the morning I first met her and heard you two talking such different conversation from mine."

"But this makes it terribly hard," he went on humbly when she had finished her tirade, a flow of words which frightened him because he had never believed her capable of such impassioned self-expression. "If you love me like that, oh, God, what a brute I've been! Why didn't you tell me? Surely you could have done that."

"Don't blame me, Jerrold; it isn't fair to do that. I wasn't used to thinking like that, much less saying aloud what I thought. I tried to tell you, once or twice, but perhaps I wasn't much good at it."

"I don't know what to say," he faltered.

For a moment she did not answer. All was silent in the garden save for the mumbling of the sisters as they slowly paced the gray cloisters.

Then: "You've said all you wanted to say?" she went on after a while. "And I've heard somehow what I expected to hear. All but one thing, my dear. You spoke of my love for you, but you never mentioned your love for me."

In a flash that new sophistication of hers was gone. It was the child Elspeth who spoke now, eagerly, breathlessly. "Oh, do say you love me, Jerry, please, please, I love you, oh, how much I do!"

He looked at her slowly, at her little face turned to his, the blue-green eyes so like Summer seas in their shifting elusive color, the pointed chin, and knew that he did love her, very much, indeed, loved her for her English beauty, her bravery in facing all this, the great honor she had done him in loving him in the way she did. The sight of her reproached him and plagued him. He knew that were they to sit there a moment longer he would break down.

As he rose to his feet he said quickly: "It's too late now, Elspeth. I love Gerda. I belong to Gerda. That can't be undone."

"But you love me, too?" She shot the question at him swift as an arrow, and the [illegible].

Yes, I Love You.

"Yes, I love you, Elspeth."

"Then it can never be too late," she said, following him as he began slowly to move away towards the gate. "never, never, never. Do what you like, say that our engagement is broken, that you will go away and never see me again, that won't make me suffer less.

"I love you, Jerry, and want you. I'd be anything to you, dear, everything that she has been. I'll come to you tonight and you can do with me what you like. Only speak, Jerry, and say that there may be a way out, that nothing's so certain as all that."

He could not speak. The weight of those last words held him silent. The tremendousness of that step of hers appalled him. She would give herself, she who, a month ago, had been little more than a schoolgirl, so matter-of-fact, so little sympathetic—and now utterly changed by love, by the swing of the pendulum, as he had been changed. There was no word now she would not speak to keep him, no step too uncertain into a, whatsoever unexplored country for her to take to win him back from Gerda.

He was overwhelmed by the suddenness of her growing up. Pictures of her as she had been in England flashed to his mind and served only to puzzle him the more.

It must have been tremendous, the urge which drove her from herself and forced her to play the other woman's game. She must suddenly have perceived the reality and the importance of her feeling for him and sensed the menace in the presence of a rival more skilled than she in the moves of love. He wondered that she should have survived that, so blinding must the light of the new revelation have been, and that, having survived it, she should be able to carry on, single-handed, the fight for her own, forcing war even into the enemy's country.

She Was Silent.

She was silent. Having said so much that up till now had been foreign to her, she was left as one stranded upon a strange shore. She had offered, and he, by accepting or refusing, must indicate the path that ran inland to the heart of the matter.

When they turned from the Tiber into the shady Szaparystrasse, he spoke again. "My dear, what can I say? Not much now until I've had time to sift all this and find where I am. But one thing is certain. I can't go back on what I said. The tie between Gerda and me is too strong a bond to break now. Leave me to think it out, please. I'll tell you tomorrow morning the way things seem to me."

"Very well," she agreed in a trembling little voice as they parted, "but I'll never agree that things are finished between us." She touched his hand and ran across the courtyard to the house.

As he turned to the door of the Chancery he felt stunned and bruised by the weight of what she had told him, by the tremendousness of the change in her. Yet, clear as a beacon light, a lamp which even through that murk could show the way, shone his love for Gerda, the memory of her and the promise her wonder gave to him.

A black velvet coat is sketched at the left, showing how low the waist can be worn this season. The fine plaiting arranged at each shoulder has a very slenderizing effect, and the plaiting again appears on the skirt part. The collar and cuffs are of red fox. The lining used for this model is of beige crepe de Chine.

Plaid kasha in beige with bright green squares and fine black stripes is used for the model sketched at the right. The bib collar and shoulder straps, cuffs and side godets are of green crepe de Chine. A binding of black crepe makes a smart finishing touch to this charming little frock.

MAKING A HUSBAND

Sequel to "My Romantic Husband"

By Ann Lisle

"PAT kept trying to tell me—something," I said.

"He wanted to come out with things before it was too late," Jim said. "I started this here business as you call it. I got Pat in the way of depending on me. I think I've a little debt to life to pay off, if you ask me."

B. T. rose and thundered sonorously:

"The books are closed."

"With Jim an outcast for life?" demanded Neal. "Anne tied to a pariah? Not on your life! Pat can take Jeanie abroad. He can keep her there until things blow over. But my sister's husband's name is going to be cleared, and the whole gang of you can't stop me from doing the right thing as I'm sane enough to see it."

"Wait a minute, young fellow!" said Jim. His voice terrified me. "Are you in a position to—cast the first stone?"

"Am I in a position to cast the first stone?" cried Neal, repeating Jim's question with a certain touch of hysteria in his voice. "How do you get that way? What do you think you mean by a question like that?"

Jim smiled and drew Pat back to the veranda of our bungalow whose [illegible] of peace had been so strangely invaded and so completely [illegible].

"I've got to say things that are in [illegible]," he said. "Anyone [illegible]."

His [illegible] was so boyish and so infectious that it broke the tension and B. T. roared out:

"King Jim can do no wrong!"

My heart went dizzy with pride as I'm [illegible].

"It's like this. When my little sister Phoebe—went, Neal, you were half mad. You disappeared with the sixty thousand dollars you were to pay to B. T. here for the option on property Pat Dalton had authorized you to handle. Everyone but Anne thought you a thief. Her faith convinced B. T. In the end the money was found where little Phoebe had hidden it. And you were brought back. But months of agony had gone by. And no one blamed you because you had been the victim of aphasia. You had lost your memory. You wandered away. You wanted to forget. No one blamed you for that. But the will to forget was so strong and so selfish in you that you caused Anne the most terrible anxiety.

"Your child, your duty, your place in society were forgotten. We call that a fancy name. But a nervous disease like that comes from a wish to evade responsibility. Ask any great psychologist, or psychopath or expert on shell-shock."

"What are you getting at?" demanded B. T.

"Don't you see what I'm getting at, Neal?" asked Jim.

"You mean I'm the sort who could let a woman—my Babbsie suffer for me. And that Pat can't let Jeanie suffer?" asked Neal thoughtfully.

"More than that," Jim said.

"You mean that Babbsie is so strong and so fine and wonderful that you and I, who adore her, can trust her to come out of suffering—the crucible that refined you—pure gold," stammered Neal.

"There's still more to it," Jim said.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Elsie Robinson.

T[illegible] gists have a new w[illegible] tion, Pal. "RATIONALIZING."

Sounds ritzy, doesn't it?

Most of us think it IS ritzy, when we do it ourselves.

But as a matter of fact it isn't [illegible] on a wonderful front, but at heart it's a cow[illegible].

RATIONALIZING IS NOTHING MORE OR LESS THAN THE OLD FAS[illegible] MAKING EXCUSES WITH A LOT OF MEAN MODERN ANGLES AND TRICKS.

For example—you have a sneaking desire to go through your husband's pockets to see if you can get [illegible] him. You know it's a dirty trick, but you're jealous and angry and you want to start trouble. So you say to yourself:

"Gosh, Bill will roar his head off if he catches me doing this and I know it's pretty rotten. But he had no business staying down town last night without telling me where he went, and at any rate I'm his wife and I guess if I want to go through his pants pockets I've got a right."

THAT'S MAKING EXCUSES.

But suppose you say:

Do It for His Good.

"I'm not doing this because I'm curious or peeved. I'm doing it for B[illegible]. He's a [illegible] boy, [illegible]. Take last night for instance. Goodness knows what harpie had hold of him. Of course he SAYS he [illegible] back with Jim on those specifications. But I'm not dumbell enough to believe THAT. Not that I mind where he went or what he did, I'm above petty jealousy like that. But as his wife I must safeguard his interests. And [illegible] I HATE to do it and it's against all my principles, I'm actually forced to go through his pockets."

THAT'S RATIONALIZING.

And a dirty business it is.

Making excuses was bad enough, but [illegible] that [illegible]. The way of the excuse-maker was hard. Everyone despised him, everyone doubted, ridiculed and rejected him. He was as unpleasantly conspicuous as the lowly skunk and as enthusiastically avoided. Which was a blessing.

Not so the Rationalizer. A bright, [illegible] Rationalizer [illegible] St. Peter himself. He has a lengthy, complicated noble sounding explanation for everything he does, however small or great, silly or vicious. And that explanation ALWAYS puts the Rationalizer in the right.

The Nagging Parent, the Peevish Husband, the Discontented Wife, the Idle Son, the Wayward [illegible] can offer rationalization of their conduct that would bring tears to the eyes of an artichoke. Never by any chance have they transgressed because they were full of cussedness and wanted to raise Cain.

Nay, nay.

Picky Little Souls.

They were misunderstood, abused, thwarted and oppressed. Their error was not a wilful impulse—it was the sane and sincere gesture of a [illegible] soul, [illegible] to gain its rights.

They say it so well and so often that they actually believe it themselves!

Nor is this pestiferous practice confined to the home. Observe the Rationalizing done by the fifty-seven varieties of Meddlers who wish to ride herd on their fellow men.

There is nothing deep about the motives of these bimbos. They are mean, picky little [illegible] would you gather that from their propaganda? I'll say you wouldn't. According to their own paid advertising they're the noblest band of self-sacrificing martyrs that ever gave their lives to save humanity.

One can have a certain amount of pity and sympathy for the Excuse Maker. After all, the cards are more or less stacked against all of us. There [illegible] make the grade. Though you can't admire a perpetual whiner, you can at least have a fellow feeling for the poor fish. But the Rationalizer is a despicable creature without a redeeming trait. He doesn't beg for your understanding or forgiveness. He DEMANDS your respect and admiration.

Do you just make excuses—or do you rationalize?

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

What sort of shirt, collar and tie is proper for the groom and for the best man to wear with a business suit? It is an afternoon wedding, but dress clothes are not desired as, frankly, there would be no further use for them.

A. M. B.

WHEN a man wears a business suit at a wedding, he should plan to wear the accessories that are most appropriate for a business suit. He should not try to adapt the accessories that are usually associated with some other kind of suit. That is a safe rule to begin with. Therefore the shirt should be white or light-colored, or white with a very light stripe. The collar should be either wing or turned down (white, of course, and stiff) depending on the kind that is more becoming to him. As to the tie, he would wear either a bow tie or the more usual and more usually becoming four-in-hand. You cannot be wrong if you choose a dark blue or black silk four-in-hand with a narrow white stripe, either singly or in groups wide apart. When a man tries to look weddingy in his business suit attire, by wearing a white tie, then he usually only succeeds in looking as if he had not sure taste. Better to wear the "best" accessories for the kind of suit that you choose. Wear black low shoes and no gloves. All of this applies to the groom and the best man.

(This also answers the question sent by "A Constant Reader.")

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper to powder one's nose in public? Take for example, in a restaurant. Please settle this heated argument for us.

L. J.

NO, it isn't proper. And I hasten to add before I am deluged with letters, that I am thoroughly aware that it is "done," but that doesn't make it "correct" or "proper." And as for the blatant process of making up the lips in a restaurant, ugh! Better take your little make-up out and go to the dressing room to "dress" your face.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

What is your advice on the following case:

A young lady intends to marry a young man who has had a wild past. The young man has told the girl all about it.

The young lady loved him before she knew of these things. She loves him still, but feels a little perplexed about the idea of marrying him.

The young man has been quite frank in telling her all his affairs of the heart. Do you think she should marry him?

Does a girl lose her self-respect when she marries a man with a wild past, but who is settled down now?

A. G. L.

THIS problem is one you alone can solve. If your fiance has told you frankly of his past and is genuine in his wish to settle down and do better, and if there is no moral or physical reason why he should not now make you a good husband, you may be very happy and in no sense lose your self-respect through judging him by what he is [illegible] not what he was yesterday—and marrying him. But be certain that he is suitable as a husband for you.

There's no necessity for you to buy HATCHET FOODS

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS

By Helen Rowland.

Helen Rowland

NOW, my Daughter, there dwelt in Babylon a bachelor whose charm and popularity exceeded those of all other men.

For his line was good and his waistline trim and his understanding of women and motor cars was perfect.

Behold, matrons coveted him for their dinner parties and sought to lure him to their tea dances. Debutantes pursued him with invitations and flappers hung upon his telephone wire. Widows fed him from their larders and confided their sorrows unto him.

Yea, verily, many pursued him, but none caught up with him.

And he said in his heart, "Now what IS this fatal charm about me which NO woman can resist? Yea WHY do they all fall for me, even before I am there to catch them?"

Now it came to pass that in his conceit the bachelor waxed careless so that he lost his balance and fell in love with a damsel a little more subtle than all the rest.

And, behold, before he awoke from his coma she had MARRIED him!

And when damsels passed him upon the street they nodded coldly and were always "in a hurry." Yea, at the tea dances he found himself gathered in a corner with the stags.

Then the bridegroom sought comfort from his wife, saying

"Now, what have I DONE that I have lost favor in the eyes of women? Alas, why have I [illegible]"

And she rumpled his hair and spake tenderly, saying

"Alas, my Beloved, knowest thou not that by marrying thou didst lose thy greatest charm for women? For verily, thy face is as good as ever, thy waistline is as trim and thy dancing is as graceful. Yet, thy [illegible] has faded from thee. Yea, thou art no longer ELIGIBLE.

Verily, verily, every man thinketh in his heart that it is his personal beauty and his fatal fascination which maketh him desirable in the eyes of women. For he perceiveth not in his blindness that a man's greatest charm is his BACHELORHOOD!

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE SON OF A KING

By Arthur Cunningham

FORSYTHE, with Joan cowering close to him, faced the ring of swarthy, bearded hillmen.

Strangely enough, it was not the fact that he and Joan Bellamy, cut off from Sir Roger Belham's hunting party in the hills of Northern India, were in grave danger from the hostile tribesmen, that impressed him. He thought of other things. He wondered how these dark men could keep their flowing robes so spotless, then his eyes, fascinated, returned to the fierce glare of Ahrat Singh and dwelt upon the sneeringly handsome visage of the Afghan.

Quaint Old Room

He thought grimly how much he would like to plant his fist in that face or stamp upon it with the cruel nails of his boots. Then another scene rose before him. He felt, too, that Ahrat Singh visualized the same scene!

It was a quaint old room in Oriel College, back in his Oxford days. Four men were seated around a wine-vat table, concentrated by the wavering light of candles, upon their cards. He saw Ahrat Singh, the same quiet, satanic Ahrat Singh, sitting opposite him, saw him take in the stakes time after time, saw his last cent go to the Afghan, saw himself rise to his feet . . . and at this moment [illegible] lips almost croaked the [illegible] they unmistakably framed . . . words uttered years ago.

"Damn you, Singh. You're a cheat and a scoundrel.' Then in his mind all was confusion. The picture faded. . . faded all except Singh's hawklike face that still glowered at him, framed in the whiteness of his hood; the same face, marked with hatred and, Forsythe fancied, anticipated revenge. From Forsythe the emir's look passed to Joan who, too terrified to speak, clung close to her companion and gazed with intense, fearing wonderment at the Afghan.

Ahrat Singh spoke in soft, beautifully modulated English, such English as a woman would speak.

Made Him Outlaw.

"Well, Forsythe, were you thinking of the same thing as I? That last night we played? A cheat, you called me; a scoundrel. And they kept us from the proof. They would not let me fight with you [illegible] you were a blue-blood, one of the nobility; I was merely the son of a hill chieftain, though he was a king in my country. And you never could prove me a cheat, much less a scoundrel, yet your accusation, the weight behind its making . . . that ruined Ahrat Singh and turned the love that he felt for England to hatred of her and all who belonged to her.

"It made the outlaw you see now. And you, son of a nobleman, never spoke to me, but succeeded in having me hounded from the school. That is my case, Forsythe. And now, before this tribunal of you and me, and the parched sanded rocks and the hills where death forever lurks and the jackal howls in the night and the bones of luckless men like you lie bleached and powdering in the eternal sun, I tell you I never cheated! No, never, and you cannot but believe it now where it matters little to me to have it believed or doubted."

Forsythe's lips moved, but no word came. Indeed they were too cracked and parched to utter any, even had he any to utter. All his old hatred of the Afghan flamed again in his heart and Forsythe could hate with all the vindictiveness of pride and prejudice. His jaw set tightly and he met the gaze of his captor with one of supreme contempt and a maddening smile of derision.

Ahrat Singh continued: "Now you are my captives, you and the fair girl. Your fiancee, perhaps?"

His teeth glistening and white as an alb, showed in a smile that might have been evil. Forsythe thought it so, and writhed in the grip of his captors.

"She would not, perhaps, care for me, Forsythe? I would be kind to her and the hill-country would be beautified by such a flower. You could not appreciate her beauty, you who are such absolute perfection yourself; while I—"

Called a Halt.

The Englishman with a prodigious effort broke from his captors and smashed the Afghan in the face. Ahrat Singh fell back, striking his head on a stone. His followers with a shriek of rage drew their knives and rushed upon Forsythe who stood with wild fury written on his face.

The emir, still conscious, bade them halt. He crawled painfully to his feet. Blood flowed from a cut in the back of his head. Joan, who had watched the scene with mingled emotions ran to him and staunched the flow with her handkerchief while Forsythe watched her, aghast, at her fearlessness.

Ahrat Singh smiled calmly.

"I knew Miss Bellamy in the old days. Do you wonder that she does not fear me? We were good friends in England, and I think she believed in me even in the face of your accusation. You have injured me again . . . too hastily, as usual.

"You judged me by the standards you have made for me. There was only one course for me to follow with you and her. I saw it from the moment I recognized you: that was to send you both back to your party. I could not have acted otherwise. I am the son of a king! Your friends wait for you a mile up the pass. Go . . . and peace be with you!"

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE BOSTON AMERICAN

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. Reed, M. D.

YOU, of course, depend upon your daily food for your life.

It follows as a rather logical consequence that, all other things being equal, the length of your life depends upon the quantity and character of your food and the sustained continuance of its supply.

A well balanced diet is of course the key to a well balanced vitality. In a well balanced diet meat enters as one constituent.

It is a striking fact that all long lived peoples, even the ancient Hebrews with Methuselah as the shining example, have been meat eaters.

I find in my scrap book an account of some experiments by Professor James Rollin Slonaker of Stanford University that have a tendency to explain this fact. He kept forty pairs of rats under continuous observation over a period of eight years. Twenty were controls, fed a normal diet including animal protein. Twenty were fed the same diet with animal protein absent.

The effect of enforced restricted diet on man in many localities during the World War was also studied, and Professor Slonaker's results with rats bear out the experience of human beings denied meat.

Professor Slonaker found that:

No meat caused male rats to weigh 35 per cent. less than correspondingly normally fed rat males and females to weigh 28 per cent. less.

Shortened male's life 33 per cent. and female's 40 per cent.

Caused 29 per cent. fewer young to be born.

Reduced proportion of males.

The diet given the "restricted" rats corresponded favorably with that of a vegetarian: fish, eggs, potatoes, beans, rice, celery, carrots, cabbage, bread, almonds, walnuts.

"Results show," says Professor Slonaker, "those fed on a diet practically restricted to plant sources are able to live and grow."

This is proof that a sufficiently varied vegetable diet contains essential factors for growth. But when the rate and amount of growth are compared with rats fed the same diet supplemented with protein, we found a marked difference favoring the omniverous eater.

This indicates that something is lacking in vegetable food. A restricted diet causes an increase in mortality of the young, and the line of descent of restricted eaters became extinct in the third generation.

Apply this to the human family. The rat is an organism not wholly unlike the human being, and limitations of diet would affect the human being in a similar manner, the professor insists.

BEDTIME STORY

A TRIP TO A WESTERN RANCH

By Foxy Grandpa

"GET up early tomorrow with me and we'll go over the ranch and I'll show you the different herds," said our friend out on the big ranch in Oklahoma, where we stopped a few days on our way east from the Pacific coast.

"Fine," said I, looking at my watch and giving Bobby the signal to say good night.

The next morning—I soon discovered it was the next morning, although it seemed as if I had only gone to sleep the moment before I heard the great clanging of a bell. I jumped out of bed and Bobby and Bunny did so at the same time.

"Must be a fire," whispered Bobby, shivering a little bit and reaching for his undershirt.

But then the bell stopped, and as I looked across the road from the ranch house I saw several cowboys coming out stretching themselves and yawning.

"I guess it wasn't a fire at all. Let me see." I looked at my watch, and added: "Fire, nothing. Five o'clock. That was the bell to get up and go to work."

"Hm," said Bobby. "I should think they'd have to wake the cattle up, too, at this hour." Then he started to dress.

We went downstairs and over to the dining room where we felt much better when we smelt the bacon the Chinese cook was frying.

There were the cowboys stowing away their breakfast and there was our host in his high boots and big hat waiting for us.

We finished breakfast and then off we started. I thought of course we would go on horseback, but not at all. We drove in an automobile way off fifteen miles to where the shorthorns grazed.

"It would have taken us all morning to get here in the old days before roads and automobiles," chuckled our friend as he stopped the car and we got out. "Times have changed since I was a pup, I can tell you."

We walked into the field and there was the Scotch herdsman talking to some of the cowboys who worked with that herd.

"Show Bobby and Bunny some of the babies," said our friend, and as he went into the barn to bring out some of the youngest members of the shorthorn family we stood by the gate and looked at the magnificent cattle which would some day be fine roast beef.

"No finer cattle in the world," said our friend proudly, "and I've got Herefords and Holsteins and Dutch-belted."

Bobby pulled my sleeve and whispered:

"Foxy Grandpa, that cow over there looks different."

She did look different. She was darker and her neck looked thicker.

"That cow," I started but didn't finish. For at that very moment the cow in question gave a leap and a bound and cleared the five fooot fence as easily as a grayhound jumps a front gate.

Our friend laughed as he saw our surprise and then said:

"That's the worst of those catalo. They won't keep within bounds."

"And what is a catalo, may I ask?" I inquired, very much puzzled.

"A catalo," explained the rancher, "is a hybrid between a cow and a buffalo. But we haven't done much with the breed."

As we turned to look at the calves, Bunny whispered:

"It's just the wild streak in that animal's nature that made her jump that fence, Foxy Grandpa. She can't help wanting to get back on the plains."

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

By William F. Kirk

WEN Pa caim home last nite Ma was kind ow mad, the ice man had left a big chunk of ice on the back poarch & he dident put it in the ice box like he moast always does & it was too hevvy for Ma & I to put in the ice box so we had to wait till Pa caim hoam & sum of the ice was melted.

The ice man & the butcher & the grocer is all gitting to be too innerpendent, sed Ma.

Did you speek savidge to him? sed Pa.

Well, sed Ma, I mite of spunked up a littel if I had been at hoam, but I was oaver at one of the nabors & Bobbie was at skool.

I doant see why that wud preevent him from putting in the ice, sed Pa.

Well, sed Ma, to be perfeckly frank & honist with you, deerest, sed Ma, I locked the back door & the front door beekaus thare has been sum Jipsys around here laitly & I was afrade sumthing mite be stolen from the house, sed Ma.

Oh, I see, sed Pa, why dident you say so, in the first place?

Stop gabbing about it & put in that ice, sed Ma.

Do you meen it? sed Pa.

You bet I meen it, sed Ma.

Well, sed Pa, if you meen it, that is all rite. I will put the ice in the ice box.

Of course yu will, sed Ma, & do it now, doant stand thare like Cannibal at Carthadge, sed Ma.

You meen Hannibal, sed Pa. Ha Ha, Cannibal, that is a hot one.

Are you going to put in that ice? sed Ma kind of slow.

Yes indeed, sed Pa, & Pa grabbed the ice & put it in the box, but it made him grunt & puff.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for published smart sayings. Address "Smart Sayings," Boston Evening American.

Harry came home from his first day at school with the announcement that he could write. Upon being given a pencil and paper he made some meaningless scribbles.

"But what does it say?" I asked.

"I don't know yet, 'cause they haven't taught me to read," was his answer. LESLIE DEINSTADT,

POWER STOCK ADDED TO LIST IN BOSTON

There have been added to the Boston Stock Exchange list 80,000 shares, without nominal or par value, of prior lien stock, $7 dividend series, and 40,000 shares, without nominal or par value of preferred stock, $7 dividend series, of the New England Public Service Co., with transactions "when issued" permitted pending delivery of the Permanent Engraved Certificates. The company is a holding corporation, owning the controlling interest in the Manchester Traction, Light & Power Co., Central Maine Power Co., and National Light, Heat & Power Co. The National Light, Heat & Power Co. controls the Twin States Gas & Electric Co., Vermont Hydro-Electric Corp., Rutland Railway, Light & Power Co. and Pittsford Power Co.

E. BOSTON LAND MAKES SALE TO CITY

East Boston Land Co. shares sold Wednesday up to 6¾, a new high since 1922, but has since sold down to 4. The record low was set last Spring when shares changed hands for $1.50.

The company has just completed negotiations whereby title to 176,000 square feet of land has been transferred to City of Boston, the land to be used for playground purposes. But this transaction netted the company very little cash. Roughly $40,000 was the price, or less than 25 cents per foot. Of that total 30,000 was retained by the city on account of back taxes. As of March 31 last accrued taxes were $160,609. Thus there is still $150,300 to be paid.

General Eletric Co. has had an option for several years to purchase certain parcels of the company's land, but this option has not been exercised. The East Boston Co. has not been able to dispose of any of its land, excepting the city purchase, for the past two years because of an attachment on its property placed by the Boston Sanitary & Development Co. Under this attachment any revenue derived from sales would go to the sanitary company to satisfy a claim of $400,000 alleged to be due it for filling in marsh land. Court proceedings will probably begin sometime in the Fall. The city transfer was in nature of a "taking," which has priority over any liens.

East Boston Co. owns 52,000,000 square feet of land—at high tide—of which roughly 44,000,000 are in East Boston, 7,000,000 in Revere and 750,000 in Winthrop. Total assessed valuation of the land is $1,900,000 or 3.6 cents per foot. The land is carried on books of the company at $1,524,554 or about 2.93 cents per foot. Capitalized for 150,000 shares of $10 par value, the company is selling in the open market for roughly $900,000, or about 1.73 cents per foot.

NEW BEDFORD MILL STARTS NIGHT WORK

Pemaquid Mills at New Bedford has started a full night shift this week and plant is now running at full two-shift capacity to keep abreast of new orders that have been booked recently. For some weeks Pemaquid has been running at full single capacity with some overtime work in weaving department, but additional orders made it necessary still further to increase output.

Pamaquid has an equipment of 800 automatic looms and occupies what was formerly a part of Fairhaven Mills property.

EASTERN STEAMSHIP PURCHASE RATIFIED

Sale of Richmond - New York Steamship Co. to the Eastern Steamship Co. under provisions of the offer made by Galen L. Stone, president of the purchasing organization, has been formally ratified by stockholders. Details of the sale and the transfer of the three steamers, wharf properties and privileges will be effected through the board of direcors. Transaction involves $250,000, approximately sufficient to cover the Richmond company's obligation.

COUNTY OF NORFOLK LOANS ARE OFFERED

County of Norfolk will receive bids until Sept. 29, for purchase at discount of $40,000 Tuberculosis Hospital maintenance notes, payable May 5, 1926. Bids will also be received for purchase at discount of $100,000 loan, payable Nov. 15, 1925. Bids will also be received for purchase at discount of $45,000 Hull street improvement notes payable Sept. 29, 1926.

BROCKTON EDISON TO ISSUE MORE STOCK

Department of Public Utilities approved the issue by Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of Brockton of 32,280 shares additional capital stock of $25 par to be sold at $45 a share. Proceeds amounting to $1,453,600 will be used to retire $530,000 of promissory notes incurred for capital expenditures on the company's property and the remainder to finance the company's proportion of the Montaup Electric Co.'s construction requirements.

ALLES & FISHER SAY BUSINESS IS GOOD

Directors of Alles & Fisher, Inc., have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents. Business in the first six months of the year was well in excess of the dividend requirements and it is already assured that the last six months of the year will show a substantial increase over the first six months.

Fixing the Blame for Our Ineffective Air Force

When Major General Mason M. Patrick, Chief of Air Service, told the Coolidge Air Board, now sitting in Washington, that the Air Service of the regular Army has always been treated by the inefficient organization of non-flying officers as if it were "the step-child of the Army" he put into polite words an ugly truth.

For this treatment the self perpetuating oligarchy of the General Staff, which is opposing any emancipation of Air Service from its control, is chiefly to blame.

And as a result of this treatment not only is the present organization of our Air Service utterly inefficient but the present condition of our Air Force comes close to being a national scandal. For the measure of an Air Force is the measure of its striking power in time of danger, and the well-nigh criminal shortage of planes and the even more serious shortage of trained pilots has reduced the striking power of our Air Force to the gesture of a skeleton.

If the people of the United States should awake tomorrow to find their country at war their's would be a rude awakening, for they would find themselves well-nigh defenseless in the air against a hostile air force.

Within the continental limits of the United States today there are only three Air Force units. This trio includes one Pursuit Group, one Attack Group and one Bombardment Group.

But even this one Pursuit Group is inadequately equipped with the most modern type of airplanes, and instead of being manned by more than 100 of the best trained pilots, this single Pursuit Group has less than 20.

Even worse off is our one Attack Group. Its personnel has been skeletonized to less than one-quarter of peace time strength, and its flying officers number less than the Pursuit Group has.

But the Bombardment Group is worse off than the Pursuit Group or the Attack Group, for the Bombardment Group has been reduced in order to provide the nucleus of an organization for experimental ordnance work.

This skeletonizing of our Air Force means that its striking power, if war should come tomorrow, consists of less than 100 aviators and airplanes ready to take the air in defense of the Nation against a hostile air force.

In the face of this disgraceful condition of affairs the less Mr. Davis has to say, as Acting Secretary of War, in defense of the anti-aircraft bureaucracy, of which he is the official apologist, the better it will be for the reputation of Mr. Davis as a prophet.

For the toll in life and treasure which the American people have paid for the upkeep of an inefficient organization of an ineffective Air Force is too great to be tolerated any longer.

No Matter If Preachers Disagree

The Reverend C. S. Potter, Unitarian, says humanity needs A NEW RELIGION, without any creed in it. Each individual must develop religion within himself.

That's very "advanced."

The Reverend Dr. Straton, on the other hand, says we must stick to the old things, and especially to "fighting sin." Dr. Straton denounces too much babbling by preachers, meddling with disputes between labor and capital.

James did not agree with him. Read in his 5th Chapter, "Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you.

"Behold the hire of the laborers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud crieth; and the cries of them which have reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth."

Isn't that about the same as telling the coal mine owners that they ought to pay the miners decent wages?

Dr. Lichenstein, Jewish preacher, complains justly that the world is LESS KIND than it was. There is only intellectual progress. Our emotions are deadened.

The Reverend J. F. Newton, Universalist, has a simple recipe for the tired world, "to find joy in your religion, love God and do what you please." That seems to be easy.

Anyhow, HEAR, READ and HEED good sermons.

Parents as School Aids

Brightest Pupils Get Home Co-operation

The United Parents' Association is doing excellent work as a liaison organization between teachers and pupils in public schools. Educators find that when a child fails to obtain full benefit from New York's unsurpassed school system the fault often lies with the parents.

In the old days education in the city was a simple problem. Classes were small, pupils were almost wholly the children of English-speaking parents, and teachers were familiar with the family conditions of their charges. Individual instruction was easily given and backward children were coached without difficulty.

Now classes are large and polyglot and the huge system cannot be slowed down for the lagging child. The remedy is parental interest. Six hours devoted by parents to discussing a child's studies with teachers may save six months for the backward student. Nine times out of ten the brightest student is the one whose parents show greatest interest in school work.

Free State and Ulster

Latter's Bluff May Be Called

Ulster is breaking out in a rash again over the probability that the Irish Boundary Commission will pare away part of the province and place it under Free State rule. Ulster threatens physical force and armed rebellion if an inch of its land is lost.

All this was to be expected. Ulster bluffed the entire British Empire a decade ago in the same fashion, and thereby set back the cause of Irish freedom. This time the indications are that Ulster's bluff will be called, and the Free State will take the trick. The gain will not be large in territory, probably, but it will be big in principle.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

THE parks are so full of holdup men lately that a fellow who wants to spoon has to hold his girl on one knee and a revolver on the other.

HE keeps his left eye on her and his right eye on the road.

HE has to call a policeman every time he wants to hug her.

IN another month, couples who go out to the park to spoon will have to take their own cops.

THE thugs not only rob you of your money but they steal your girl. One fellow always handcuffs his sweetheart to a tree.

HE'S been going to the park for three years now and has never lost a dame.

SOME men wouldn't think of going spooning in the evening without taking along a spare girl.

A NEW YORK man lost ninety-seven dollars and three girls in Central Park the other night.

IN some towns you don't even dare go automobile riding in the evening. The only machine that's anywhere near safe is the patrol wagon.

VERY few parks are safe after dark. A man who can't live without romance has to work at night and spoon in the daytime.

IN one city, the park commissioner has moved all the benches down to police headquarters.

COUPLES can go down there and make love for fifty cents an hour.

THIS isn't very romantic, but you're safer than you'd be in your own parlor.

THE plan is a big success and every night you can see fifteen or twenty couples waiting in line for a bench.

PARENTS don't have to worry any more. They know that if their children are at the police station they're safe.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "HAPPINESS AND MARRIAGE"

A MARRIAGE made of LOVE does not need
A MANSION;
When two people love
Dearly, WISELY and
WELL, a TINY room
Can be like HEAVEN,
For LOVE takes only
A LITTLE SPACE;
But MARRIAGE WITHOUT Love requires A LOT
OF ROOM and
SPACE is ESSENTIAL,
For AGGRAVATING couples
Constantly NEED IT
To put BETWEEN THEM
In order to make LIFE
BEARABLE.
Surely the reason of
So many DIVORCES must be TOO MUCH TIME
In TOO LITTLE SPACE.
Of course, people are Always RUSHING OUT
Of their HOMES to LOOK for HAPPINESS,
And rushing back to see
If they left it BEHIND.
HOME is the LOGICAL
Place to look for HAPPINESS, but HOW CAN IT BE FOUND
There if it was NEVER INSTALLED.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

THROUGH countless marching years all men have sought in vain to find relief from tears, to put an end to pain. Since first from bowers of bliss they turned their steps away, they longed for only this: a fruit without decay, a bloom that would not fade, a song that would not die, Spring's joyous cavalcade forever passing by. This has been man's first aim, deeper than all the rest, dearer than wealth or fame, fairer than honor's crest, only to clip joy's wings, only to bind love's feet, clinging to all glad things, holding to all things sweet. Still must the sunset pale, rose pedals fall away; all of man's efforts fail, joy lingers but a day. So, then, the wise will turn after this transiency, unto the spirit's bourne where deathless treasures lie.

Decries Our "Freedom"

To the Friend of the People:

I went to church Sunday. I heard a bishop say: "In New England, we are the most privileged of any in the United States." That sort of thing started a brainstorm in me. I sat down, shoved my hands in head, to stir up thoughts. I got nowhere.

That is just the trouble in New England, they are constantly boasting of their blue blood, heredity, wealth obtained from grandfather and bulge out with their privileges in speech. There are no more privileges in New England when we come to examine them than in any other part of the country. I think that there are more in the West.

To the Friend of the People:

Hop picking is now in season at the Kentish Hop Gardens in England. A few of us have pleasant remembrances of what this means.

This year it has been a great blessing to many out of employment.

I have been told that the cranberry pickings on the Cape afforded more real pleasure than this. But unlike hop picking in Old England, we miss something else that follows it in this country.

Reverence for Dead

To the Friend of the People:

The suggestion made in your column that at the North and South Stations a room should be set apart and used exclusively as a waiting room for caskets, containing loved ones, about to be transferred elsewhere. I saw in the South Station last Sunday two caskets standing on the platform for a long time, which seemed to be treated as ordinary freight with other materials standing by.

Other large stations have a room or a space reserved for caskets and why not have one here in Boston? Chicago will have a large and commodious one in its new station.

Immigrants Aided

To the Friend of the People:

There is a growing work being done among newly arrived immigrants from many countries right here in Boston, which, if better known, would gain more public attention.

At the West End Community House, Italians are being taught, twice a week, the rudiments of English, so that they pick up phrases and words, gradually leading them to speak the English language tolerably well after several months steady training. Then the principles of Americanism are given with this instruction. If more attention and interest were felt in these newly arrived immigrants, they would be kept from other temptations that drive them into trouble.

Defends Fussy Buying

To the Friend of the People:

Women are not so particular, as a writer implies in your column. Of course, they are careful in their selection of material and do not want to act hastily.

If women were like men displaying no judgment in their buying, they would have much to regret.

Women are more careful in buying for they know what they want. This is not so with men. They never know for any length of time what they want and then fuss over it afterwards.

MRS. T. S. MAHONEY.

No Parking Down-Town

To the Friend of the People:

In your column you can never say too much against the growing congestion of traffic in Boston. Something must be done very soon to correct it. One way to lessen it is to allow no parking on any street between certain hours of the day. Look at the West End, full of parking autos on one side of the street, but dangerous to pedestrians who have to cross these streets.

Why allow parking on any side of Bromfield street, Temple Place, West street, and adjoining streets.

Please tell traffic officers to make their head act with their hand in giving orders to pedestrians to cross the streets.

A Tribute Deserved

To the Friend of the People:

Boston could well pay homage to the Rev. George J. Prescott, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, Cortes street, who has resigned after fifty years in that position.

He has never played to galleries in any of his ministrations. All his splendid work has been quietly done.

Actors and actresses of this and former generations owe him a tribute of high praise for his continual service to the profession.

CONCENTRATION IS KEY TO SUCCESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IT is significant that the two men, J. E. Barnard and William Ewart Gye, both came from lowly and non-scientific origins.

Dr. Gye is a young man, as medical men average. He is forty. He used to work on a railroad in Derbyshire, where he was a railroad porter and earned money for his education in Edinburgh. He lives in a London suburb.

His whole life has been devoted to research work, as for many years he was with the National Institute for Medical Research on a very indifferent salary.

Some years ago he made noteworthy discoveries in diseases of the nervous system and later came into notice by investigation as to the poisonous effect of various kinds of dust.

For two years he has given himself up to cancer research. Dr. Rous of America had discovered the fact that sarcoma in fowls was due to some sort of germ. Dr. Gye thought that he was on the right track.

At this stage of the game Barnard entered.

Barnard was a hatter in London, owning a shop on Jermyn Street. This was only his meal ticket. For thirty years his big interest in life was microscopy. Although he is a business man of fifty years, he has become one of the foremost microscopists in the world.

He has spent thousands of dollars upon microscopy and has never accepted any money for his services, not even during the war, when he gave all his time to the government.

He invented a new kind of microscope. Scientists know that the violet rays at one end of the spectrum have the highest magnifying powers. Proceeding from this, even better results were obtained from the ultra violet rays.

Barnard perfected a method whereby a powerful camera looked through an equally powerful microscope upon objects illuminated by ultra-violet and other rays. By this he was able to photograph germs that so far had escaped all efforts to identify them.

It was one thing to photograph a supposed cancer germ and quite another thing to prove that it did bring about cancer.

Gye proved the malignity of the tiny things which Barnard's microscope saw.

This does not mean that a cure for cancer has been discovered, as so far no anti-toxin has been found that will kill the germ.

Tuberculosis germs were discovered twenty-five years ago and the cure is still being sought.

The two men are singularly modest. They have refused many offers of those who wish to be experimented upon and said they would first experiment on themselves and then on their laboratory assistants, if necessary.

Their success in this matter proves the value of careful and painstaking concentration.

SUNSPOTS SIGNS OF CLIMATE CHANGES

By Garrett P. Serviss.

THERE are two great facts on which to base sufficient answer to those who would deny that the influence of changes on the sun are vividly felt in climate and weather conditions on the earth.

The first of these facts is that the earth is as much dependent upon the sun for its heat as for its light and the second fact is that the sun is a variable star—in other words the radiant energy that it transmits to the earth varies in amount in intensity, and, possibly, to some extent, in character.

Nobody who witnessed the eclipse of last January would have thought of ascribing the accompanying darkness (and the accompanying chill) to anything other than the calling off of the sun's radiance.

It is a matter of common knowledge how much the temprature of the atmosphere has to do with the many phenomena affecting human comfort, activity, health and life, which we group under the general term "weather."

Then, since the great source of the required heat is the sun alone, it seems as absurd to doubt that changes of the solar radiation have a direct and decisive reaction upon the weather as it would be for an Autumn camper to doubt that the dying down and rekindling of his fire cause the alternate states of glowing comfort and glacial chill that qualify his night's sleep in the woods.

In truth, just as the eye has evidence of the ups and downs of the campfire so, too, it can detect, in some degree visual signs that accompany the mutations of radiant energy in the great furnace that warms the solar system.

Speaking of the irregular variations of one or more per cent. that occur in the output of solar radiation in short periods of a few days Charles G. Abbott of the Smithsonian Institution says:

"They seem to be associated with visible features upon the sun, such as sunspots and faculae. In other words, though the prosense of very numerous sunspots betokens high solar radiation, yet whenever one of them marches across the centre of the sun's disk there is a brief interval of diminished solar radiation.

It happens as if a solar cloud overshadows each sunspot, which, when it comes squarely between the earth and the sun, produces a small depression of radiation.

And at the same meeting of the National Academy of Sciences at which Dr. Abbott made this statement, H. H. Clayton, treating the subject from the point of view of weather forecasting, said:

"It has been found that with every class of variation of solar radiation, whether of a few days, a few months or many years' duration, as in the sunspot period, the normal area of high and low pressure in the earth's atmosphere swing north and south in unison with the changes in solar radiation and thus determine excesses or defects of temperature and rainfall, which swing north and south with the pressure.

And with reference to the visual signs of solar changes that may react upon the earth, and to noted sunspots, Mr. Clayton said: "When the spots and faculae are on the central meridian of the sun there is a diminution of solar radiation, probably resulting from absorption, and an increase above normal when they are on the edges of the sun.

"The side of the sun on which the spot is located averages cooler than the opposite side, and there appear to be periodic oscillations of about three and one-half, seven and fourteen days, which are in some way related to solar conditions.

"The passage of spots across the central meridian of the sun is immediately followed by low pressure at central continental stations like Winnipeg, and higher pressure is found at the same stations on the average when the spots and faculae are on the eastern and western limbs of the sun. The relation to the temperature is opposite to that of the pressure."

ENVY AND DISCONTENT DESTROY PLEASURE

Do you ever try to want what you get?

You should not be so satisfied that that you do not progress, but when you cannot get what you are after be satisfied with what you have.

Every time some high-grade, expensive car rolls quietly past your old machine you are envious. You forget the spirit of fun which open air exercise should give.

Not the reckless, imaginary good time endangering your own life and others, but wholesome enjoyment carried along by what you can afford.

If you could know the sacrifice and the unhappiness which goes with many of the more expensive things in life you would pray for contentment and feel thankful for things as they are.
